JFK Hails Pact's Approval

Conservation Emphasized By President

Minnesotans Told Manpower Waste "Is Disastrous"

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — President Kennedy said Tuesday night, in the heart of one of the nation's worst economically depressed areas, that the United States must move quickly toward saving both its natural and human resources.

Winding up his first day of a five-day trip in which the theme is conservation, Kennedy declared the northern Great Lakes region has unemployment twice the national average "which is itself too high."

The President said: "Waste of natural resources is tragic. But waste of human resources is disastrous."

The speech before the Northern Great Lakes Region Conference on Land and People was his third since he flew out of Washington on Tuesday morning following Senate approval of the nuclear test ban treaty. He stopped first at Milford, Pa., then at Ashland, Wis.

Crisis Must Be Solved

He preached the doctrine that the nation must solve a crisis in its resources and its natural wonders.

"I am on a trip designed to direct attention to the crisis facing our natural resources—our fresh water, our soil, our forests and streams, our minerals, and even the air we breathe," Kennedy said.

"Every one of them faces the danger of destruction—and every one of them must be protected and conserved."

But at Minnesota he turned also to the problem of people, asserting, "Our goal is the full employment of both the natural and human resources which this area still possesses in abundance."

Specifically, he said the effort to get the jobs must be done cooperatively, cutting across federal jurisictions and state boundaries, and he insisted it must be joined by public agencies and private industries.

Outline Of Attack

The attack, he said, must be done by education and retraining of the labor force, by increasing federal aid to depressed areas, by creating more jobs through public works, by recruiting youth into a conservation corps if such a project is passed by Congress, by making more rural land productive, and by cutting taxes.

On taxes, Kennedy declared, "It is a direct means of stimulating the economy to produce more jobs by producing more goods and services for people with more money to spend and invest."

Kennedy's trip, ending at Las Vegas, Nev., emphasizes primarily that the nation must save its natural resources or future generations will suffer.

Kennedy began his busy trip at Milford, Pa., where he dedicated the Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies.

The institute is named for, and is the old home of the late Gifford Pinchot, a pioneer in saving forets and wildlife.

Defense Chief, JCS Chairman Land In Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —A U.S. Air Force transport landed President Kennedy's two top military advisers here Tuesday night for a survey that may help shape future Washington policy toward President Ngo Dinh Diem and the war against Vietnamese Communists.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were welcomed by U.S. officials at Saigon's airport, where a Pan American Boeing 707 had put down a few hours earlier with one engine crippled by guerrilla fire.

Heading the reception party ware Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who took up his duties here at the height of South Viet Nam's political-religious crisis last month, and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, chief of the 14,000-strong U.S. armed forces which are supporting and sometimes fighting alongside Vietnamese troops.

McNamara told newsmen that he and Taylor had made several trips to South Viet Nam in the last few years. He said the current mission was decided on following consultations between Kennedy and Lodge. He declined comment on the purpose beyond saying he is to report to Kennedy on the progress of the military situation.

McNamara and Taylor plan to confer with top U.S. officials in Saigon on Wednesday and spend the next three days touring the main battlefronts.

Senate OKs $47 Billion Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate swept aside all major efforts to cut the administration's $47.3-billion defense appropriations bill Tuesday and approved it 77-0 in a swift and crushing display of power.

The unanimous passage sends the bill back to the House which had previously approved $258 million less than the $47,339,707,000 voted by the Senate.

A House-Senate conference committee is expected to iron out the differences.

The brief floor battle, spanning only a few hours of debate, was marked by only one close call: A 45-43 turndown of an effort by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., to trim one per cent or nearly $158 million from the $15,783,747,000 earmarked for new military hardware.

Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., floor manager for the bill, then led administration forces in overwhelming a $2.2-billion cut proposed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. The vote was 74-2.

Just before final passage, the Senate scuttled 72-5 an effort by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to trim $60 million from $103 million designated for development of a new mobile Army missile of medium range.

Russell did steer through one change by voice vote—a $31.7 million reduction in the military hardware section. Russell said he had been assured the money is for Army missiles that can be deferred.

The total is $1.6 billion less than the President requested.

House Debates Tax Slash; Vote Expected Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appeals for the crucial votes of conservative Democrats opened the House battle over President Kennedy's $11-billion tax cut bill Tuesday.

In a speech Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., pleaded with colleagues to make possible a "turning point in economic policy." Voting for the bill, he said, would be pledging faith in private enterprise, rather than government spending, to invigorate and improve the nation's economy.

But almost from the first word, Republicans were bidding for support of their amendment that would make the tax cut depend on budget cutbacks for this year and the next.

To Democrats who are fighting to put the bill through in time for increased take-home pay to start in January, House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana addressed a warning. If the Republican amendment is not accepted, he said, "passage of this bill is in serious jeopardy."

The House fight, expected to end in a showdown vote Wednesday, is only the beginning of the struggle of Kennedy lieutenants—against substantial odds—to get the reduction of the books before Congress goes home this year. Such a timetable is essential if the Jan. 1 goal for reducing withholdings from pay envelopes for income tax is to be reached.

But a jammed schedule in the Senate, soon to be preoccupied with civil rights legislation, makes the outlook doubtful.

The tax bill would put into effect Jan. 1 two-thirds of the ultimate tax cuts. These would range from about $100 to $200 a year for typical taxpaying families—more in absolute amounts, though not in proportion, for taxpayers in very high brackets.

The remaining tax cut would come later.

Corporation income taxes would be cut, also in two stages, from 52 to 48 per cent and the taxation of capital gains, such as profits on stocks, also would be eased.

Hospital Attendant, Patient Die In Fall

ROME (UPI) — Hospital attendant Armando de Filippis, 55, and his stretcher patient, Angela Serverini, 70, were killed Tuesday when Filippis backed into an open elevator shaft and dragged his patient with him.

Hospital authorities said Filippis wheeled his patient to the elevator and rang the bell. He heard the doors open and stepped backwards wthout looking. The elevator was not at that floor.

Soviet Calls On Citizens For Grain Salvage Effort

MOSCOW (AP) — In an atmosphere of agricultural emergency, the Soviet Union has called on all citizens to get out and help salvage what's left of this year's disastrous grain harvest.

Despite shortages in many Moscow stores, however, there was no panic buying of food. Wheat flour was virtually unobtainable, but bakers seemed to have ample supplies of bread.

The official farmers' paper, Selskaye Zhisn, warned that plowing for spring grain crops in many areas was dangerously low. This could mean another harvest as bad as this one, which forced the Kremlin to spend over $600 million to assure bread for the people.

The average Russian has been kept in the dark about the grain shortages, but papers began Tuesday to give some idea that the situation was serious.

Sovietskaya Rossia, organ of the Russian Federated Republic, told persons who live on farms—only a small proportion of them are farmers—to drop everything else and help with the harvest.

It appealed to city dwellers to rush to the fields too.

Vegetables and fruit supplies have been hurt by drought. Few are for sale in Moscow.

Grapes and apples were on sale at the equivalent of 45 cents a pound, wormy pears at 85 cents a pound. The two main staples—potatoes and cabbage — cost six cents a pound for potatoes and 25 for cabbage.

Meat supplies were normal, which means scanty. Prices averaged $1 a pound, but the pound included all the scraps.

U.S. Won't Be Caught Short If Ban Broken

Preparations Made To Resume Testing Should Russ Do So

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government atomic agencies are rushing preparations for resuming nuclear tests in the atmosphere if the Soviet Union violates the nuclear test ban treaty, informed sources reported Tuesday.

The administration's objective is to be ready to conduct some types of tests within about two months after a go-ahead from President Kennedy.

It took about six months to get set for the last U.S. series of atmospheric tests in the Pacific.

An accelerated program of underground testing may already have begun.

Underground Tests Held

Atomic Energy Commission officials noted there have been five below-ground tests — two in a single day—since the treaty was signed in August. Over-all, the AEC has announced 105 such tests.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Pentagon's defense atomic support agency have taken steps to improve methods of detecting any sneak atmospheric, underwater or in-space tests.

Programs are under way to improve and maintain the vitality of the important laboratories where new weapons concepts are devised.

Much of the test preparation work is being performed by Joint Task Force 8, which handled testing operations at Johnston and Christmas islands in the Pacific. It is being enlarged from a standby nucleus.

Scientists Disagree

It is the position of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Dr. Harold Brown, the Pentagon's research and engineering director, that the United States will not fall behind in the drive to develop an effective antimissile missile system, if nuclear testing is restricted to underground blasts.

Not all scientists agree. Dr. Edward Teller is a notable and vocal exception.

To prepare for high - altitude tests, the AEC and the Defense Department are installing more rocket launch pads at Johnston Island.

To provide an airborne nuclear test capacity the AEC and Pentagon are providing special planes fitted for dropping weapons, for studying explosion effects with sensitive instruments, and for sampling the mushroom clouds.

Cold Records Fall In East

By United Press International

Cold weather records tumbled Tuesday from New England to Dixie on the first full day of autumn.

It was three degrees colder in Atlanta, Ga., than at Billings, Mont., and as cold at Birmingham, Ala., as at Bismarck, N.D.

The mercury tumbled to an icy 20 degrees — the nation's low—at Montpelier, Vt., and Lebanon, N.H. A 22 was recorded at Oneonta, N.Y.

Virginia temperatures dipped to a freezing 28 at Front Royal. Record lows for so early in the season included 25 at Burlington, Vt., 36 at Atlantic City, N.J., and 38 at Goldsboro, N.C.

A nippy 39 at Raleigh, N.C., broke a 67-year old record for the date. A reading of 37 at Richmond, Va., set a new September cold weather mark.

Big Three Ministers To Confer Saturday

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The first U.S.-British-Soviet foreign ministers' talks on what East-West agreements may be possible as a followup to the test ban treaty will be held Saturday afternoon, it was announced Tuesday night.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will be host to Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko and Britain's Lord Home at a working lunch at Rusk's hotel suite.

Observation Plane Missing In Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — A U. S. Army observation plane with two men aboard has been missing since late Tuesday afternoon near the demilitarized zone that divides South Korea from the Communist North, a United Nations Command (UNC) spokesman said.

The plane failed to land at Kimpo airstrip 50 miles west of Seoul after radioing the control tower for landing instructions.

Cleve McDowell Ousted For Toting Concealed Pistol

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — The University of Mississippi Tuesday expelled its only Negro student, Cleve McDowell, for carrying a concealed weapon to class.

The move reinstated total school segregation in the state.

"Ole Miss" officials acted upon the recommendation of a five member student judicial council headed by the son-in-law of Sen. James O. Eastland.

McDowell was suspended from classes Monday after Sheriff Joe Ford jailed him on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, a small 22-caliber pistol. Ford arrested McDowell as he emerged from a class.

Leaves Jail Under Bond

McDowell, 21, was released from jail under $250 bond an hour before Tuesday's hearing and appeared before the council, which is headed by Champ Terney, Eastland's son-in-law.

Chancellor J. D. Williams announced through the university news service "the expulsion of Cleve McDowell for carrying a concealed weapon on the campus and in a class room."

Williams said, "the same procedures were followed in this case that are followed in all non-academic disciplinary cases at Ole Miss."

Recommended Expulsion

The announcement said McDowell's expulsion was recommended by the judicial council to Dean L. L. Love and Chancellor Williams, and both concurred.

Council recommendations are followed in practically all disciplinary cases at "Ole Miss."

McDowell, who was in his dormitory, when the decision was announced, was not immediately available for comment.

McDowell spent 90 minutes defending himself before the council. He was accompanied during the appearance by Negro attorney Jack Young of Jackson and Charles Evers, brother of slain integration leader Medgar Evers.

The three refused comment following the hearing and returned to McDowell's dormitory. A university guard was on duty outside the dorm.

Royall, Blaik Plan Meetings At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two presidential representatives describing themselves as "friendly guests" said Tuesday afternoon they have scheduled meetings Wednesday with both white and Negro leaders in their effort to patch up racial differences, and indicated such meetings will be held daily.

Former Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall and former Army football Coach Earl H. Blaik—issued a joint statement following talks with city officials which lasted more than four hours after their arrival in Birmingham.

They were sent to this racially-tense city by the President as unofficial arbitrators between the two races.

Wednesday they have scheduled a 9:30 a.m. meeting with white community leaders, who include former Mayor W. Cooper Green, and Arthur Wibel, president of United Steel Corporation's Tennessee Coal and Iron Division.

At 2:30 p.m. Blaik and Royall will confer with a contingent of Negro leaders. These include attorney Arthur D. Shores, and businessman A.G. Gaston, whose homes have been targets of recent bombings. Others to attend are attorney John Drew, Rev. J.L. Ware, and L.H. Pitts, president of Miles College, a Negro college in Birmingham.

In their statement, Blaik and Royall said "meetings will be held daily," and that they plan to confer later with former mayor and staunch segregationist Arthur J. Hanes and ex-city Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor.

"Other groups will include the clergy, professionals, merchants, and other citizens in Brimingham," they said.

Woman Trapped Two Days In Car With Four Dead

CLOVERLEAF, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Hazel Shephard, 45, and a dog were trapped two days with four dead persons in a smashed and overturned car in a creek bed near Cloverdale.

Rescuers worked with crowbars for 90 minutes Monday night to free the woman and the dog. Doctors at nearby Healdsburg General Hospital said Mrs. Shephard was in satisfactory condition despite a fractured left shoulder blade and a collar bone, a collapsed left lung and dehydration.

Her husband, Robert, 55, of Sonoma, was one of four dead discovered jammed in the crumpled sedan. The others were George Alger, 58; his wife, Dora; and Alger's mother, Mrs. Emma Alger, about 75, all from Annapolis, Calif. The elderly woman had the dead dog in her lap.

New Chief Looks To Day Of Rocketing Marines

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Kennedy Tuesday chose as head of the Marine Corps a general who looks forward to a day when his Leathernecks will be rocketed to almost any spot on earth in 80 minutes.

The President's choice, effective Jan. 1, is Lt. Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., now Marine Corps Chief of Staff. He will succeed Gen. David M. Shoup as commandant for a four-year term. Shoup's term expires Dec. 31.

At a news conference following White House announcement of his appointment, Greene said he believed rocket transportation of troops is a definite possibility for the late 1970's.

The Saturn V moon rocket capable of putting 240,000 pounds in low orbit around the earth, might be used as a booster, he said.

A start towards providing rocket transport over shorter distances such as 300 miles could be made in five or six years, he added, by using the Air Force's Dyna-Soar space ship which is scheduled to fly in 1965.

In announcing Greene's appointment, the White House said Shoup had been offered an extension of his term, and had declined on grounds of health and the policy of ending an appointment at the close of the four-year term. Navy Secretary Fred Korth, who said he recommended Greene for the post, said Shoup was not ill and merely wanted to preserve his health.

Both the White House and Korth expressed hope that the popular Shoup would continue to serve the government in some other capacity.

Ratification Voted 80-19 By Senators

Eight Republicans Join 11 Democrats In Opposing Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted overwhelming approval Tuesday of the historic treaty banning all but underground nuclear tests.

Giving President Kennedy the big "aye" vote he asked, the senators lined up 80 to 19 in favor of the pact.

The only absentee, ailing Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., was listed as supporting the treaty.

Kennedy issued a statement expressing his pleasure at the winning margin. He commended leaders of both parties and Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for their "painstaking work" in bringing the treaty "to this highly satisfactory vote."

"The wide support of the senators of both parties given to the treaty after an extensive and wide ranging debate is evidence not only that the treaty has wide public support but also of the collective judgment that this instrument is good for the people of the United States and people all over the world," Kennedy said.

There never had been any serious doubt about ratification.

President Gives Assurances

But nearly two weeks ago, as some opposition to the pact appeared to be building up, Kennedy had sought to stem it with these words:

"If we are to give grudging support, if this small, clearly beneficial step cannot be approved by the widest possible margin in the Senate, then the nation cannot offer much leadership or hope for the future."

Those words plus Kennedy's assurance that he will keep the nation's nuclear arsenal in alert readiness to guard against any cheating, gave him the resounding support he sought. Part of the support was based on the desire expressed by some senators to halt the increase in radioactive fallout.

As it turned out, the margin was predicted by Fulbright a month ago. That was before his committee's 14 days of hearings on the pact and the Senate's 12 days of debate in which senators made 125 speeches.

Supporting ratification were 55 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Opposed were 11 Democrats and eight Republicans.

Byrds Vote Against Treaty

The Democrats who voted against the treaty were Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, Richard B. Russell of Georgia, John Stennis of Mississippi, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

The Republican opponents were Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Len B. Jordan of Idaho, Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Milward L. Simpson of Wyoming, and John G. Tower of Texas.

The next step in making the treaty effective will be the formal ratification by Kennedy, which officials said could take place within a few days.

The pact will become effective when instruments of ratification are deposited by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in each of their respective capitals. This unusual procedure was agreed on when the pact was negotiated in Moscow last July.

So far 102 nations have signed the treaty.

Defense Chief, JCS Chairman Land In Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —A U.S. Air Force transport landed President Kennedy's two top military advisers here Tuesday night for a survey that may help shape future Washington policy toward President Ngo Dinh Diem and the war against Vietnamese Communists.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were welcomed by U.S. officials at Saigon's airport, where a Pan American Boeing 707 had put down a few hours earlier with one engine crippled by guerrilla fire.

Heading the reception party ware Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who took up his duties here at the height of South Viet Nam's political - religious crisis last month, and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, chief of the 14,000-strong U.S. armed forces which are supporting and sometimes fighting alongside Vietnamese troops.

McNamara told newsmen that he and Taylor had made several trips to South Viet Nam in the last few years. He said the current mission was decided on following consultations between Kennedy and Lodge. He declined comment on the purpose beyond saying he is to report to Kennedy on the progress of the military situation.

McNamara and Taylor plan to confer with top U.S. officials in Saigon on Wednesday and spend the next three days touring the main battlefronts.

Senate OKs $47 Billion Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate swept aside all major efforts to cut the administration's $47.3-billion defense appropriations bill Tuesday and approved it 77-0 in a swift and crushing display of power.

The unanimous passage sends the bill back to the House which had previously approved $258 million less than the $47,339,707,000 voted by the Senate.

A House-Senate conference committee is expected to iron out the differences.

The brief floor battle, spanning only a few hours of debate, was marked by only one close call: A 45-43 turndown of an effort by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., to trim one per cent or nearly $158 million from the $15,783,747,000 earmarked for new military hardware.

Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., floor manager for the bill, then led administration forces in overwhelming a $2.2-billion cut proposed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. The vote was 74-2.

Just before final passage, the Senate scuttled 72-5 an effort by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to trim $60 million from $103 million designated for development of a new mobile Army missile of medium range.

Russell did steer through one change by voice vote—a $31.7 million reduction in the military hardware section. Russell said he had been assured the money is for Army missiles that can be deferred.

The total is $1.6 billion less than the President requested.

House Debates Tax Slash; Vote Expected Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appeals for the crucial votes of conservative Democrats opened the House battle over President Kennedy's $11-billion tax cut bill Tuesday.

In a speech Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., pleaded with colleagues to make possible a "turning point in economic policy." Voting for the bill, he said, would be pledging faith in private enterprise, rather than government spending, to invigorate and improve the nation's economy.

But almost from the first word, Republicans were bidding for support of their amendment that would make the tax cut depend on budget cutbacks for this year and the next.

To Democrats who are fighting to put the bill through in time for increased take-home pay to start in January, House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana addressed a warning. If the Republican amendment is not accepted, he said, "passage of this bill is in serious jeopardy."

The House fight, expected to end in a showdown vote Wednesday, is only the beginning of the struggle of Kennedy lieutenants—against substantial odds—to get the reduction of the books before Congress goes home this year. Such a timetable is essential if the Jan. 1 goal for reducing withholdings from pay envelopes for income tax is to be reached.

But a jammed schedule in the Senate, soon to be preoccupied with civil rights legislation, makes the outlook doubtful.

The tax bill would put into effect Jan. 1 two-thirds of the ultimate tax cuts. These would range from about $100 to $200 a year for typical taxpaying families—more in absolute amounts, though not in proportion, for taxpayers in very high brackets.

The remaining tax cut would come later.

Corporation income taxes would be cut, also in two stages, from 52 to 48 per cent and the taxation of capital gains, such as profits on stocks, also would be eased.

Royall, Blaik Plan Meetings At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two presidential representatives describing themselves as "friendly guests" said Tuesday afternoon they have scheduled meetings Wednesday with both white and Negro leaders in their effort to patch up racial differences, and indicated such meetings will be held daily.

Former Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall and former Army football Coach Earl H. Blaik—issued a joint statement following talks with city officials which lasted more than four hours after their arrival in Birmingham.

They were sent to this racially-tense city by the President as unofficial arbitrators between the two races.

Wednesday they have scheduled a 9:30 a.m. meeting with white community leaders, who include former Mayor W. Cooper Green, and Arthur Wibel, president of United Steel Corporation's Tennessee Coal and Iron Division.

At 2:30 p.m. Blaik and Royall will confer with a contingent of Negro leaders. These include attorney Arthur D. Shores, and businessman A.G. Gaston, whose homes have been targets of recent bombings. Others to attend are attorney John Drew, Rev. J.L. Ware, and L.H. Pitts, president of Miles College, a Negro college in Birmingham.

In their statement, Blaik and Royall said "meetings will be held daily," and that they plan to confer later with former mayor and staunch segregationist Arthur J. Hanes and ex-city Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor.

"Other groups will include the clergy, professionals, merchants, and other citizens in Brimingham," they said.

Cold Records Fall In East

By United Press International

Cold weather records tumbled Tuesday from New England to Dixie on the first full day of autumn.

It was three degrees colder in Atlanta, Ga., than at Billings, Mont., and as cold at Birmingham, Ala., as at Bismarck, N.D.

The mercury tumbled to an icy 20 degrees — the nation's low—at Montpelier, Vt., and Lebanon, N.H. A 22 was recorded at Oneonta, N.Y.

Virginia temperatures dipped to a freezing 28 at Front Royal. Record lows for so early in the season included 25 at Burlington, Vt., 36 at Atlantic City, N.J., and 38 at Goldsboro, N.C.

A nippy 39 at Raleigh, N.C., broke a 67-year old record for the date. A reading of 37 at Richmond, Va., set a new September cold weather mark.

Woman Trapped Two Days In Car With Four Dead

CLOVERLEAF, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Hazel Shephard, 45, and a dog were trapped two days with four dead persons in a smashed and overturned car in a creek bed near Cloverdale.

Rescuers worked with crowbars for 90 minutes Monday night to free the woman and the dog. Doctors at nearby Healdsburg General Hospital said Mrs. Shephard was in satisfactory condition despite a fractured left shoulder blade and a collar bone, a collapsed left lung and dehydration.

Her husband, Robert, 55, of Sonoma, was one of four dead discovered jammed in the crumpled sedan. The others were George Alger, 58; his wife, Dora; and Alger's mother, Mrs. Emma Alger, about 75, all from Annapolis, Calif. The elderly woman had the dead dog in her lap.

Soviet Calls On Citizens For Grain Salvage Effort

MOSCOW (AP) — In an atmosphere of agricultural emergency, the Soviet Union has called on all citizens to get out and help salvage what's left of this year's disastrous grain harvest.

Despite shortages in many Moscow stores, however, there was no panic buying of food. Wheat flour was virtually unobtainable, but bakers seemed to have ample supplies of bread.

The official farmers' paper, Selskaye Zhisn, warned that plowing for spring grain crops in many areas was dangerously low. This could mean another harvest as bad as this one, which forced the Kremlin to spend over $600 million to assure bread for the people.

The average Russian has been kept in the dark about the grain shortages, but papers began Tuesday to give some idea that the situation was serious.

Sovietskaya Rossia, organ of the Russian Federated Republic, told persons who live on farms—only a small proportion of them are farmers—to drop everything else and help with the harvest.

It appealed to city dwellers to rush to the fields too.

Vegetables and fruit supplies have been hurt by drought. Few are for sale in Moscow.

Grapes and apples were on sale at the equivalent of 45 cents a pound, wormy pears at 85 cents a pound. The two main staples—potatoes and cabbage — cost six cents a pound for potatoes and 25 for cabbage.

Meat supplies were normal, which means scanty. Prices averaged $1 a pound, but the pound included all the scraps.

Observation Plane Missing In Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — A U. S. Army observation plane with two men aboard has been missing since late Tuesday afternoon near the demilitarized zone that divides South Korea from the Communist North, a United Nations Command (UNC) spokesman said.

The plane failed to land at Kimpo airstrip 50 miles west of Seoul after radioing the control tower for landing instructions.

New Chief Looks To Day Of Rocketing Marines

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Kennedy Tuesday chose as head of the Marine Corps a general who looks forward to a day when his Leathernecks will be rocketed to almost any spot on earth in 80 minutes.

The President's choice, effective Jan. 1, is Lt. Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., now Marine Corps Chief of Staff. He will succeed Gen. David M. Shoup as commandant for a four-year term. Shoup's term expires Dec. 31.

At a news conference following White House announcement of his appointment, Greene said he believed rocket transportation of troops is a definite possibility for the late 1970's.

The Saturn V moon rocket capable of putting 240,000 pounds in low orbit around the earth, might be used as a booster, he said.

A start towards providing rocket transport over shorter distances such as 300 miles could be made in five or six years, he added, by using the Air Force's Dyna-Soar space ship which is scheduled to fly in 1965.

In announcing Greene's appointment, the White House said Shoup had been offered an extension of his term, and had declined on grounds of health and the policy of ending an appointment at the close of the four-year term. Navy Secretary Fred Korth, who said he recommended Greene for the post, said Shoup was not ill and merely wanted to preserve his health.

Both the White House and Korth expressed hope that the popular Shoup would continue to serve the government in some other capacity.

Hurricane Edith Menaces Islands

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Hurricane Edith bore down on the islands of the eastern Caribbean Tuesday with 80-mile-an-hour winds and forecasters said the storm may get worse.

The San Juan weather bureau said "all precautions against hurricane force winds, high tides, heavy surf and torrential rains should be rushed to completion at Martinique, St. Lucia, Barbados, Guadeloupe Dominica and St. Vincents."

Hospital Attendant, Patient Die In Fall

ROME (UPI) — Hospital attendant Armando de Filippis, 55, and his stretcher patient, Angela Serverini, 70, were killed Tuesday when Filippis backed into an open elevator shaft and dragged his patient with him.

Hospital authorities said Filippis wheeled his patient to the elevator and rang the bell. He heard the doors open and stepped backwards wthout looking. The elevator was not at that floor.

Cambridge Negro Leader Reportedly Resigns Her Post

Daughter Says Mrs. Richardson Has Quit

CAMBRIDGE (AP—Mrs. Gloria Richardson, chairman of the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee and a leader in the demands of Negroes for equal rights here, has resigned her post, her daughter said Tuesday night.

The daughter, Donna, 16, said only that her mother had resigned. She said a formal statement would be issued later Tuesday night or Wednesday.

Mrs. Richardson was not immediately available for comment.

There have been unconfirmed reports circulating in Cambridge for several weeks that all was not tranquil within the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee. The controversy seemed to boil around whether Negroes should vote in the Oct. 1 referendum on an equal public accommodations amendment to the town charter.

Mrs. Richardson had steadfastly insisted that Negroes should ignore the referendum. She contended that equal public accommodations was a right inherent, and that it should not be put to the ballot.

Other Negro leaders, however, have said that only of Negroes went to the polls en mass to vote for the amendment would it have any chance of passage. White leaders who favor the amendment have said the same thing.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has fully supported the Negro vote campaign.

There are politicians involved. But this time they are outnumbered by ordinary citizens in trying to sway votes.

The result may be a whopping turnout of 80 per cent of the 5,200 eligible voters next Tuesday.

There's been door-to-door, telephone and letter solicitation. Mass rallies to sustain enthusiasm are scheduled.

Although there is a state law on equal public accommodations in 11 counties and Baltimore City, and previously one in Montgomery County, Cambridge's referendum is the first on the question.

An attempt was made to petition the 1963 state act to referendum, but the secretary of state ruled there were insufficient valid signatures.

There were more than enough signers, 1,272, to force the proposed Cambridge city charter amendment to the ballot.

Strangely, Negroes may hold the key to whether restaurants and hotels will be required to serve them. The margin between affirmative and negative votes could depend on how many of the 1,200 eligible turn out at the polls.

Parren Mitchell, Negro executive secretary of the Maryland Interracial Commission, plans to be in Cambridge next Tuesday to help.

White Methodists, predominant religious group in Cambridge, have been invited to hear Wednesday night their church's stand on racial equality from Bishop John Wesley Lord.

The organized opposition is centered in a businessmen's association which claims a membership of 500.

Senators Will Explore Easing Red Trade Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spurred into action by the $500 million Canadian wheat sale to Russia, two Senate committees will meet informally Wednesday to explore the possibility of relaxing U.S. export control policies.

Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., of the Agriculture Committee, set up a meeting for 2:30 p.m. to which a spokesman for Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman was invited.

Earlier Tuesday, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges also told a news conference he personally favors permitting more civilian goods exports to Communist nations.

There have been a number of demands for a reconsideration of U.S. trade policies since the Canadian wheat sale and another Soviet purchase of $90 million worth of wheat from Australia.

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., from a big wheat-producing state, started the ball rolling last Tuesday when he told his colleagues the sale "makes our foreign policy look pretty silly — we should take a new look at it."

He said this country now has $4 billion worth of wheat on hand and "if all our allies are going to sell to Communist countries, it is hard to see why we should sit back ourselves."

Young drew immediate support from Sens. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and others.

"We sell wheat to Western Europe which mills it into flour and sells it to Russia, to Eastern Europe, and possibly Cuba," Aiken declared.

Hodges in his comments, said he has not made such a specific recommendation to President Kennedy, but had discussed with the President a re-examination of American trading policy.

The President "has been thinking about it," Hodges told a questioner, but has not indicated whether the White House is leaning toward an easing of the present restraints on exports to the Soviet bloc.

As for himself, Hodges said he feels that the East-West trade barrier has not been as practical an approach as might have been adopted, in view of the fact that virtually all of this country's allies are selling goods to the Soviet Union and the Soviet satellites a multibillion-dollar annual clip.

Britain To Join A-Fleet Talks

LONDON (AP) — The British government has decided — hesitantly and conditionally—to join American-sponsored talks on President Kennedy's plan for an international nuclear fleet.

Qualified sources in the government, who reported this Tuesday night, outlined the conditions:

—Participation in next month's discussions in Washington and Paris must not commit Britain to eventual membership of the mixed-nationality force of Polaris missile carriers.

—Scope of the inter-allied talks must be widened to allow for an examination of alternatives to Kennedy's project.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home flies to New York Wednesday to seek an accomodation along these lines with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The reported cabinet decision was reached after days of argument which found Lord Home opposed by Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft.

Traffic Is Halted For Plane Takeoff

EASTON (AP) — State Police held back traffic on Maryland 331 Tuesday while a crop-dusting plane took off.

Robert Hartman, pilot of the craft operated by the Sid Parsons Dusting Co. of Salisbury, said the biplane had made a forced landing Monday because of engine trouble.

The takeoff today after repairs was successful. Traffic was blocked briefly by troopers from the Easton Barracks.

Cuba Guerrilla Activity On Rise

HAVANA (AP) — There are signs in Cuba which point to an increase in anti-Castro guerrilla activity, especially in Las Villas and Camaguey provinces.

There is nothing to disprove reports of stepped-up opposition and the government's own actions tend to lend credence to them.

Raul Castro, armed forces minister, indirectly admitted the problem when he told army officers, "The enemy has not been able to penetrate in considerable force in Oriente Province as it has in other provinces."

Underground sources and "Gusanos"—worms—as the opposition is known, insist the situation in Las Villas and Camaguey has gotten out of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's control. They claim guerrillas have tied up all government forces and Castro has had to send reinforcements from Oriente and Havana.

Rumors have reached Havana of several ambushes where the army suffered large numbers of casualties. Castro appointed himself commander in chief of the army Tuesday in a reshuffle of top military command titles.

Castro, himself, however, has denied that anything extremely grave is going on.

There are about 74 million horses in the world. This is a 22 per cent decline since the start of World War II.

Railroads Say No Progress Made In Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroads said Tuesday they haven't been able to agree with the unions on a single point in their 4½-year-old work rules dispute. The carriers urged arbitrators to disregard past railroad settlement offers.

However, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz indicated both sides were close to agreement in early August, with one of two key issues all but settled before negotiations broke down and threatened a nationwide rail strike.

Wirtz' comments came in a report to a seven-man arbitration board outlining his unsuccessful efforts to settle the controversy.

The board, headed by arbitrator Ralph T. Seward, was directed by Congress to decide the two key issues in the dispute—whether 32,000 firemen should be laid off on freight and yard trains and whether the size of freight train crews can safely be cut.

The board's findings on these two points must be accepted by both sides, under terms of the emergency legislation.

Va. Integration Argued

BALTIMORE (AP) — Racial integration in the public schools of Arlington County, Va., was argued before an appeals court Tuesday for the fourth time since 1956.

"I can honestly say that our school system is completely integrated — teachers, scholars and employment," Frank L. Ball, counsel for the school board said.

"I admit a lot of progress has been made, but it is an over statement to say it is complete," replied James M. Nabrit III, lawyer for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

The NAACP is asking the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals to overrule the Eastern District Court of Virginia which dissolved an injunction against the Arlington school board.

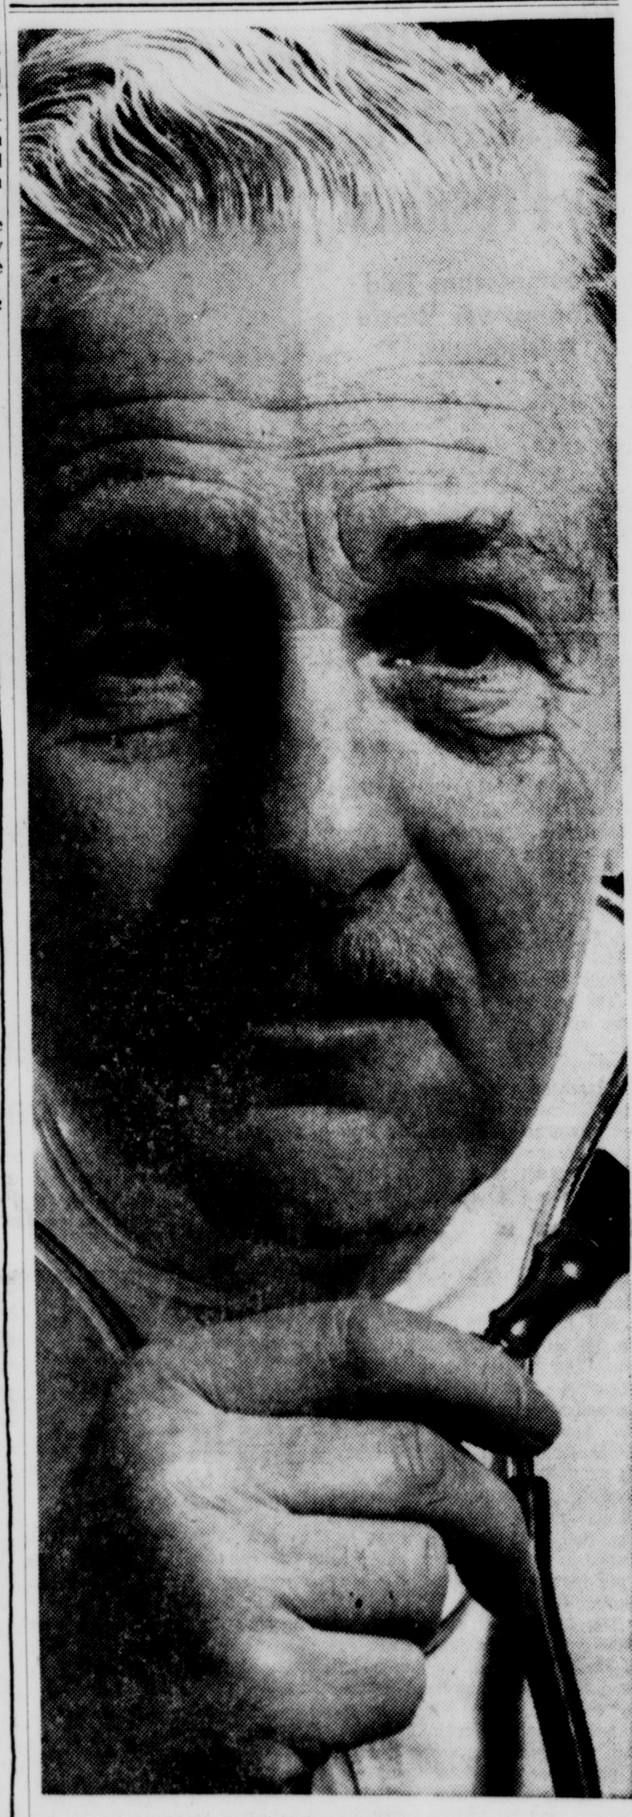

The 1956 injunction restrained the board from refusing admission to any school because of race or color. At the time, all Negroes went to three schools and whites to others.

Due to court stays and appeals, the first four Negroes were not admitted to previously all-white schools until February, 1959.

The District Court, in dissolving the injunction under which about 25 Negroes had been transferred by court order to white schools, ruled March 1, 1962, that the Arlington board "was not improperly continuing discriminatory attendance areas."

IT WAS LIKE MOWING YOUR LAWN 210 TIMES A YEAR

Suppose grass grew madly around here seven months a year. That's about 210 days. And suppose it grew so fast that you had to cut it every day. Well . . . a few weeks of that routine and you'd scream: "No mow, for me."

Such a daily grass cutting chore would put a huge dent in your leisure time. And yet less than a generation ago, most families in this area were using about that much time every day during the seven-month heating season—getting some warmth out of their old-fashioned furnace. You remember—shake it, bank it, load it, empty it . . . ooops, it went out.

Natural gas changed all that. Today . . . gas heating provides your comfort automatically. It's the biggest convenience in your home. Really big.

And best of all . . . natural gas brings you this comfort and convenience at a cost much less than any other source of energy.

IT WAS LIKE MOWING YOUR LAWN 210 TIMES A YEAR

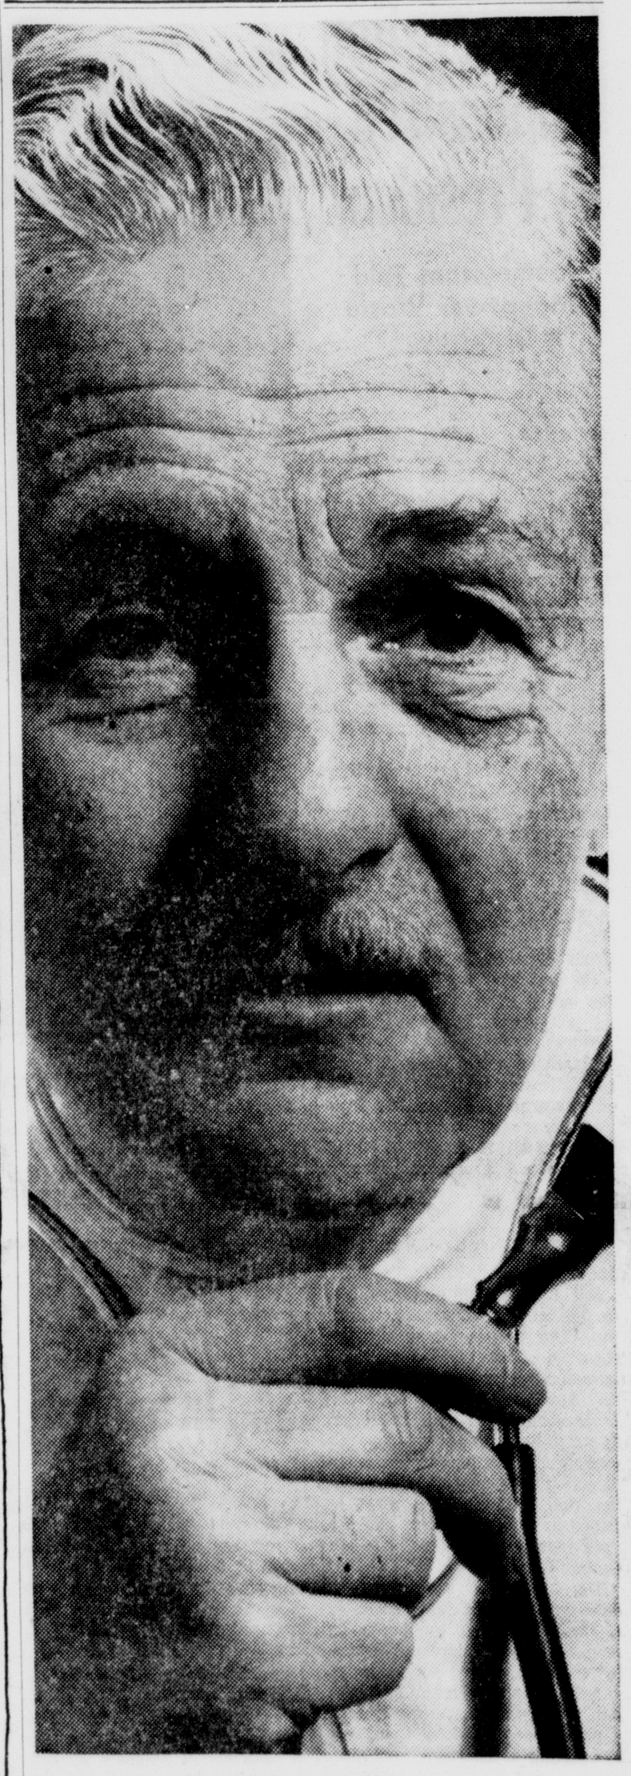

Suppose grass grew madly around here seven months a year. That's about 210 days. And suppose it grew so fast that you had to cut it every day. Well . . . a few weeks of that routine and you'd scream: "No mow, for me."

Such a daily grass cutting chore would put a huge dent in your leisure time. And yet less than a generation ago, most families in this area were using about that much time every day during the seven-month heating season—getting some warmth out of their old-fashioned furnace. You remember—shake it, bank it, load it, empty it . . . ooops, it went out.

Natural gas changed all that. Today . . . gas heating provides your comfort automatically. It's the biggest convenience in your home. Really big.

And best of all . . . natural gas brings you this comfort and convenience at a cost much less than any other source of energy.

Columbia Gas of Md.

He Recommends Surgery . . . but can you handle the expense? Regardless of your answer, you're still going to need an operation. And if you don't have adequate health care protection, the need for unexpected surgery can cause real financial problems. The solution? Blue Shield.

Here's why: Blue Shield provides all subscribers with liberal benefits for physicians' services. And for those whose annual incomes are within specified limits—up to $7,000 for a family enrolled in Plan B—participating physicians accept Blue Shield allowances as full payment for covered services. In Maryland, only Blue Shield offers such a medical-surgical paid-in-full benefit.

This explains why 750,000 Marylanders are enrolled in Blue Shield . . . and why 80,000 joined Blue Shield last year alone. Shouldn't you have Blue Shield?

We'll be glad to send you full information.

Criminal Code Modernization Urged By Finan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Atty. Gen. Thomas Finan of Maryland urged the legislature of that state Tuesday to revamp the state's "outmoded" criminal code, using the American Law Institute's model code as a guide.

Finan praised the clarity and concise form of the model code, which defines all crimes and offenses, and sets out the punishment for each classification of crime.

Finan was a member of a panel which discussed the code at the national convention of the Federal Bar Association in Philadelphia.

He said it has become increasingly obvious to him since becoming attorney general that vagueness in Maryland's criminal statutes render a disservice, not only to prosecutors but to defendants as well.

One of the major problems now, Finan said, involves the distinction between misdemeanors and felonies.

"The effect of this distinction . . . is to require a police officer, faced with a suspected criminal, to make an on the spot determination as to whether or not the suspected crime is a felony or a misdemeanor.

"On the basis of that officer's necessarily hasty judgment can rest the success or failure of a conviction.

"The adoption of the Model Penal Code, or a measure similar to it, could serve to eliminate such problems in many cases."

Atheist Leader Reports Center Fund Drive Lags

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Madalyn Murray, who plans to start an atheist center in Stockton, Kan., said Tuesday she's having some difficulty raising funds.

"Everyone is taking their good sweet time sending their pledges in," Mrs. Murray said.

The 42-year-old divorcee said that atheists around the country had pledged contributions large enough to finance the project.

"But I wanted the money immediately," she said, "I'm a lady in a hurry."

Mrs. Murray recently won a suit which resulted in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling against Bible reading in public schools.

She now heads a corporation, Other Americans Inc., which plans to set up an atheistic information and educational center "to teach the concept of man living with man rather than man living with God."

An 80-acre tract near Stockton, a town of 2,000 persons in northwest Kansas, has been donated by Carl Brown, 77, local atheist, nudist and former member of the state legislature.

Mrs. Murray declined to estimate how much the Other Americans had collected so far, but said figures would be announced Oct. 6 after a corporation board meeting in New York.

She did not seem too worried about the finances forthcoming.

"Even Barry Goldwater is having trouble" raising contributions, she said.

She plans to move to the center with her mother and two sons, William Jr., 17, and Garth, 8. However, the exact day of her departure from here depends on what is decided at the New York meeting, she said.

In the meantime, the controversial housewife is busy answering her correspondence.

"Soon we're going to have to move the furniture into the backyard to make room for the mail."

Mayor Renews Baltimore's Bid For U.M. Branch

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin continued his campaign Tuesday to convince Gov. Tawes that the new University of Maryland branch should be built in Baltimore, instead of Baltimore County.

The mayor told Tawes that the University of Illinois is enlarging its facility to accommodate 20,000 students by 1970 through a $61 million campus in Chicago.

"By placing the Maryland University branch in Baltimore, students who could not afford to go away to college can live at home and commute to the nearby campus," McKeldin added to his letter to the governor.

Also in the mail for the governor was a recommendation by State Sen. J. Joseph Curran, D-Balto. 3rd, that the new Advisory Council for Education take over the branch location dispute.

Curran said the General Assembly might have erred in designating Baltimore County site for the proposed undergraduate branch.

"The General Assembly is certainly not infallible, and thus when we speak of intent, I feel reasonable men will allow a second look at the intention of the legislature if indeed it be called for," Curran, a member of the Senate Education Committee, said.

"The location of this site is of such a nature as to call for a second look, or at the very least, an expression from the Advisory Council," Curran told the governor.

The Advisory Council discussed the site location question last week at its organizing session, but reached no decision.

Texas is the nation's top producer of chemicals from oil and natural gas.

Injunction Bars Farmer's Cows From Highway

ANTIETAM FURNACE, Md. (AP) — Austin Stottlemyer's 60 cows were ordered by a Washington County Circuit Court judge Tuesday to find another path to pasture.

Judge D. K. McLaughlin issued an injunction against Stottlemyer to restrain him from driving his cattle on a public road which Stottlemeyer had been using for 30 years.

W. Warren Stultz, attorney for Stottlemyer's neighbors, said the cattle trampled lawns and flowers, stuck their heads in the store, caused cars and people to be splattered with manure, tied up traffic and were a fly and odor nuisance.

Noting that Stottlemyer has a private path of his own, Stultz said: "Why should the people of Antietam be subject to even a minimum of hazard, a minimum of discomfort?

"They do not say this is the worst situation in the world. They do say it is absolutely unnecessary."

John Hollyday, defending Stottlemyer, disavowed the manure argument.

"There has been no testimony here that the Stottlemyer cows drag any more manure on the roads than any other cows in the state of Maryland," Hollyday said.

Judge McLaughlin said, however, that although the cows did not cause extensive damage to lawns and did not constitute a traffic hazard, "The people have a right to go into their property free from wading through cow dung."

McLaughlin said Stottlemyer had an alternate lane which was shorter, smoother and more direct.

"I'd take it 10-1, and I think a cow would too," McLaughlin said in handing down his ruling.

The judge did say Stottlemyer could continue using the public path until he could fence off an alfalfa field next to his road.

Apple Harvest Reaching Peak

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Peak harvest of Red and Golden Delicious apples is expected this week.

The Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday the Delicious varieties in Western Maryland were moving in volume.

Picking of Stayman, Rome Beauty and York apples will begin in early October, the service said.

The service reported that pasture feed supplies continued to be below average for this time of year and the soil moisture supplies were still short in north central Maryland, despite recent rainfall.

Only about 5 per cent of Maryland-Delaware corn acreage has been picked, the service said, and 50 per cent of the corn was mature by Sept. 21, compared with the five-year average of 70 per cent at this date.

Safety glass has been standard equipment on automobiles since 1928.

Maryland News In Brief

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — An escaped prisoner from the Maryland House of Correction, captured in Tennessee last week, escaped from his guards again as they reached the prison grounds.

James Sherman, 22, of Arnold, Md., the fugitive, was sentenced from Dorchester County last March for larceny. He escaped from a prison laundry detail June 28 but was arrested last week in Elizabethton, Tenn.

As Lt. Joseph Steen and Guard William Walters reached the prison with him Monday night, Sherman escaped into a wooded area. Police issued a 13-state alarm.

MCLEAN, Va. (AP) — A government worker was killed Tuesday when his car skidded on Kirby Road, throwing him into Pimmit Run.

The victim was James Edward White Jr., 23, of Washington, D.C. White, an employe of the Central Intelligence Agency, was found lying face down in the creek after his sports car struck a bridge railing.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Funeral services will be held Thursday in Baltimore for William J. Finn, a retired accountant and former Democratic member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Finn, 77, died Monday at Prince Georges General Hospital in Cheverly, Md. He had been living with a daughter in Lanham, Md., since his retirement in 1961 after 52 years with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Finn was elected to the House of Delegates in 1921. A son and daughter survive.

NEW YORK (AP) — Traffic Commissioner Henry Barnes says the yellow line dividing traffic on Fifty Avenue will remain yellow except for St. Patrick's Day, when it will be made green.

In the past, the color has been changed to suit the wishes of various groups. The Italian Historical Society now wants it royal purple for Columbus Day, but the Spanish Consul General argues it should be Spanish red and yellow because Spain financed Columbus.

Barnes, former traffic commissioner of Baltimore, said: "This has gone far enough. Our men have more important things to do than paint polka dot stripes up Fifth Avenue every time there is a parade."

BALTIMORE (AP)—Top Maryland Republicans will be in Baltimore Sunday for a dinner-dance sponsored by the newly formed Spartan Republican Club.

Among those expected to attend are Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., and the man expected to oppose him for the U.S. Senate nomination in next year's primary, Rep. Charles Mathias Jr., R-Md.

Others who have accepted invitations include Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, R-Md.; David Scull, state Republican chairman; Joseph Dukert of Baltimore, party vice chairman; Baltimore Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, and Baltimore County Executive Spiro T. Agnew.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The tinkling bells of ice cream vendors may be silenced in the late hours of the evening.

At the request of Comptroller Hyman Pressman, City Council ceived Tuesday a bill to ban the bells ringing from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m. The fine for offenders would range from $1 to $5.

City Airport To Apply For Air Landing Listing

The city will make application to be included on the published approach procedures for airlines and private airplanes which could use Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The decision to make the application followed a meeting yesterday of city, Montgomery Air Service officials and Edwin E. Gelletly, who is in charge of instrument procedures of the Federal Aviation Administration with offices in Richmond, Va. Montgomery Air Service operates the local airport.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said the city will proceed to fill out application forms to be filed with the FAA. If approved this will be the first time the city has been included on the air procedures map and will open it up to more use by air traffic.

Nuzum said all necessary requirements for approval, including a homing beacon, 24-hour duty at the administration building at the airport, and a "hot line" to Martinsburg, are presently employed.

Attending the sessions were Gelletly, Nuzum, Mayor Earl D. Chaney, City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen, T. J. Whelan, president of Montgomery Air Service; A. D. Nicholson, chief pilot of the air service; and William C. Holbrook, chief pilot for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

LaVale Fire Unit Holding Annual Drive

The LaVale Volunteer Fire Company is in the midst of its annual fund drive which it is hoped will be completed by October 10.

Firemen are being assisted in the house-to-house canvass by the Ladies Auxiliary as well as many residents who have volunteered their time and cars.

This will be the final drive for the community as voters approved a fire tax for the LaVale area. The tax, however, will not be levied against the home owners until bills are sent out in June 1964.

Cromwell C. Zembower, drive chairman, urged residents to receive the volunteers on their first call as there are a large number of places for them to contact.

Paul Boch, president, pointed out that many items are being received for the upcoming fall auction to be held at the fire hall at 10 a.m. Saturday, October 12.

Those having articles they wish to donate for the sale may call PA 2-0871 or PA 4-6806 and firemen will pick them up.

Boch also reported that Mrs. George Kemp, fire hall caretaker, is still hospitalized in Memorial Hospital where she was admitted September 4.

Water Use Normal

Water consumption last week averaged a normal 11,457,000 gallons daily, the Mayor and Council was told Monday. On Sunday, Lake Gordon was down six feet, six inches and Lake Koon was eight feet below the spillway.

Public Meeting On New Housing Facility Today

Problems involved in locating a public housing facility in the downtown area will be discussed at a meeting of officials at a luncheon meeting today.

Since an effort will be made to coordinate activities of the various organizations involved in the situation, Mayor Earl D. Chaney said the discussion will be confined only to those groups actually involved and that site of the meeting would not be announced.

Invitations are expected to be issued to a representative of the Housing Authority of Cumberland, Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, Urban Renewal Agency and the Allegany County Commission on Problems of the Aging.

The Housing Authority is presently planning a project between North Mechanic and North Centre streets for elderly persons.

Use of the valuable downtown site for such a purpose has brought some protest

Frightening Asthma Attacks End In Minutes As New Formula Unblocks Lung Passages Fast

New Medical Formula Restores Free Breathing Without Vaccines, Shots Or Narcotics. Calms Anxiety. No Prescription Needed.

New York, N.Y. (Special)—A team of scientists has announced a new formula that stops frightening asthma attacks in minutes and unblocks lung passages fast.

Medical tests prove this formula promptly restores free breathing, so calms anxiety and relieves the worst symptoms of asthma—the straining for breath, the gasping, the wheezing, the terrible fear of suffocation. All without vaccines, painful shots or habit-forming drugs. This formula is so safe when used as directed, it can be sold without prescription in tiny tablets called BRONITIN®.

Doctors know that when asthma strikes, breathing tubes become swollen, lung passages become blocked, so air is "trapped" inside lungs and less and less oxygen can enter. Now BRONITIN, with two asthma relieving medicines that doctors prescribe for their patients, acts quickly to open bronchial tubes and loosen the mucus that blocks lung passages. Trapped air is released and new vital oxygen enters the lungs.

The result is: free breathing is restored, tension eased and so fears are calmed in minutes. Sufferers can now look forward to restful sleep.

Get BRONITIN—available at all drug stores without prescription.

Dog Sets Up Housekeeping

FAIR GROVE, Mo. (AP)—Laddie, a shepherd, apparently had his canine heart set on building himself a dog house.

For some time Randolph Talmage had been missing tools and equipment from the cabinet shop on his farm. He finally happened upon Laddie, his neighbors' pet, as the dog scurried from the shop with a hammer in his mouth. Soon he returned and carried off a bucket full of screws.

Talmage followed the four footed thief to a spot in the woods where the dog had stashed all his loot.

Explorer Scouts Work For NY Tour

Ten members of Explorer Post 17, sponsored by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, made a weekend tour of New York City.

The trip was financed by proceeds of the Post's Satellite dances held during the year.

While in New York the Scouts visited Rockefeller Center and Radio City, the United Nations Building, Hayden Planetarium, Museum of Natural History, Statue of Liberty, Coney Island, Grand Central Station, the Atomic Energy Exhibit, the 1964 World's Fair preview exhibit, Chinatown, Greenwich Village and made a moonlight cruise of Manhattan Island.

Attending were Gary Wagner, William Overstreet, James Taylor, Michael Thomas, Douglas Grimm, Peter Thomas, Theodore Nave, Richard Walker, Kenneth Mowery and Thomas Rudd.

Adult advisors were Theodore Fritz and Allen Nitshke, both of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

During the coming winter months the Scouts will construct sails for their six canoes. The post's 1964 special activity will be a two-week trip to Canada.

At the age of 15, John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, toured Russia as secretary-interpreter for an official U. S. diplomatic mission.

The name Angola was given to Portuguese West Africa in honor of King N'gola who invited the explorer Paulo Dias de Novais to settle there in 1575.

County Man Offers CS Suggestions

Ellis B. Wisler Sr., Ellerslie, appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday with several suggestions.

He submitted written recommendations concerning the hiring of county employes, procedures in conducting Civil Service examinations and also advertising of job vacancies.

Wisler urged that the county board employ a male head of a household with a family in preference to a married woman with a child or employed husband.

He also said that adequate notice be given of job openings by advertisements in local newspapers. He further suggested that any vacancy be filled within six or seven weeks and preferably before the person leaves a position. This would make for continuity in the job, Wisler pointed out.

Wisler also took issue with the kind of examination given in certain categories. He said the questions in the test he took some weeks ago for chief clerk of Trial Magistrates Court were not pertinent to some of the duties of the post.

The commissioners took no action on Wisler's recommendations stating they would have to study them. The Ellerslie man also said he has an appointment with one member of the Civil Service Board to discuss some of the matters he presented to the county board yesterday.

Firm Selected To Build PE Generating Station

Burns and Roe, Inc., internationally known power engineering firm, has been selected to design and engineer the new Fort Martin generating station on the Monongahela River below Morgantown, W. Va., according to R. G. MacDonald, president of the Potomac Edison System.

Burns and Roe was selected on a basis of bids, with five other engineering organizations competing for the assignment on the $57.5 million generating unit, to be built jointly by Potomac Edison and Monongahela Power Company, both operating members of the Allegheny Power System.

Work on the engineering phase of the project will be started immediately, MacDonald said, with construction scheduled to start next spring. The unit, which will have a rated capacity of 500,000 kilowatts, is expected to be placed in service in 1967.

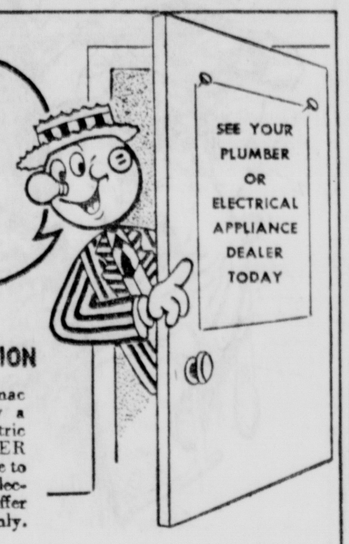

It will be the largest generating unit installed on the Allegheny Power System.

Knock on wood, of course, but at this rate, Antique Bourbon will soon be a Big Name.

Not long ago, we were making whiskey with great care for a devoted few.

Now we're having to work nights to keep up with the demand.

To our devotees of long standing, a word of reassurance.

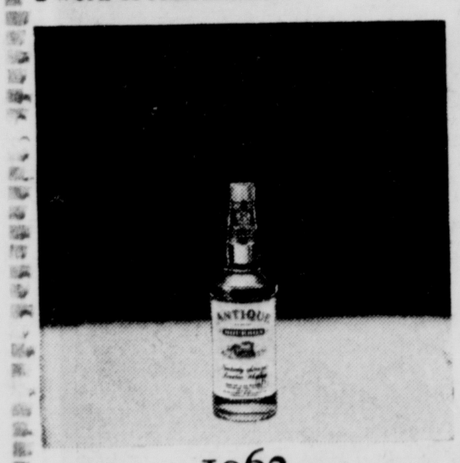

(We don't know how old it is, but it was certainly in business before Prohibition.)

Now it seems to us only natural that older people should enjoy the full-bodied flavor of Antique Bourbon.

What surprises and delights us is the number of younger people who are taking to such an old-fashioned whiskey.

We seem to have started a backward trend.

Won't you join us?

We won't cut down in the slightest on the care that we take.

How diligent are we?

We even go out to the cornfields and pester the farmers.

You see, we're after the best ears, not too moist. And we figure the place to start looking is right in the corncrib.

The way bourbon makers used to.

Our older admirers believe that Antique has recaptured the character of the great pre-Prohibition bourbons.

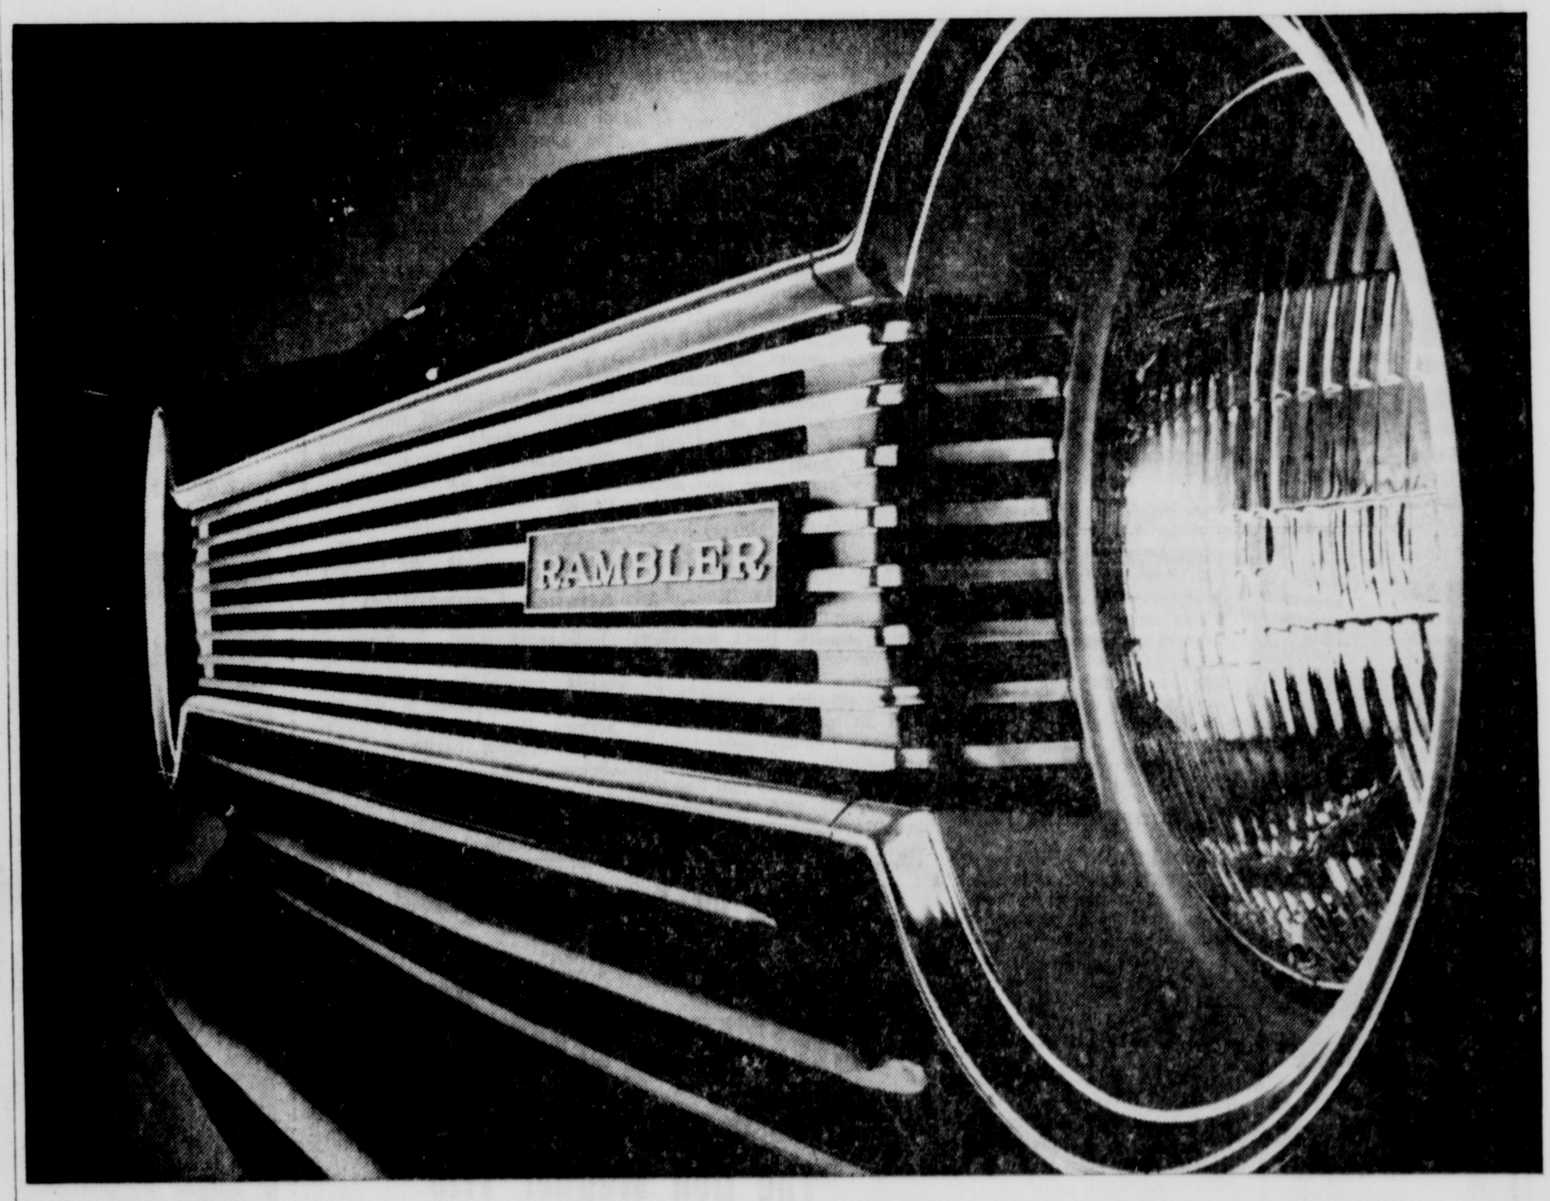

Which is understandable, since we go out of our way to preserve that character.

We employ a particularly old yeast, for instance.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been trying to write this letter for several days but I become so furious every time I think about it I am unable to gather my thoughts.

Our son was not accepted into kindergarten this fall because he will not be five years old until November 16th. James is an unusually precocious child. He has been reading for almost a year. He began reciting poetry from memory when he was two and a half, and I don't mean little nursery rhymes. James prefers the classics.

Three children in this block were accepted into kindergarten simply because they were born from seven to twelve weeks earlier than our James. None of these children are particularly bright. I refuse to believe that they are better prepared for school than our son. When are the schools going to remodel the archaic entrance requirements and take into consideration the total child instead of just his birthday? — INDIGNANT

DEAR IN: It's awfully hard for a teacher or a superintendent to tell an adoring mother that her genius son (who may well be brilliant) is not emotionally ready for school. The child who is reciting Keats may not be ready for kindergarten, regardless of what his mother thinks.

It is true that some older children are not ready either, but the most workable overall rule of thumb is to establish an age for entrance and stick to it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure you do some good, but I want you to know that you do some harm once in a while, too.

A cousin of mine is getting married around Christmas. He asked me to be his best man at his wedding and I said I would. He then asked me if I owned a tux and I said, "No." He told me I would have to rent one because the wedding is going to be a fancy affair. When I asked who was going to pay for the tux rental he said, "Ann Landers says you are."

I think this is all wrong and I don't care who says otherwise. I didn't ask my cousin if I could be his best man. HE asked ME. Why should I have to pay money out of my own pocket to do him a favor?

Please print this right away and tell me if you actually made up this crazy law. It doesn't sound like you. But then, you hear from so many nuts it's possible that you have turned a little nutty yourself. Thank you. — BROKE

DEAR BROKE: Yes, I do hear from some nuts, but then I get some lovely letters from charming people like you, so it evens out.

I did not make up the "law." It is a tradition that the members of the wedding party pay for their own outfits. It is considered an honor and a privilege to have been selected — and honors and privileges often entail responsibilities.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 35, married for the second time and have two teenage children by my first marriage. These children live with my wife and me.

Three months ago I met a girl, 30, who came to work at the plant. She is married for the second time, also. This woman has three children by her first marriage.

We eat lunch together every day and she has told me that her second marriage is not working out. I'm in love for the first time in my life. Bells ring, I get a queasy feeling in my stomach, I get to work early, leave late, hate to see the weekend come, ect. I think of her constantly.

Should I tell her how I feel and see if a third marriage for both of us can be arranged? — THE VIRGINIAN

DEAR VIRGINIAN: Number three would be no better than (and no different from) Number One or Number Two after a few months. Stick with what you have and make it work.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 304 "The unique regiments of the Berdan's Sharpshooters . . .," it is declared in Wm. F. Fox's old book, "Regimental Losses in the Civil War," for sanguinary reasons.

Col. Hiram Berdan proposed in 1861 the formation of special regiments of outstanding marksmen—individuals from frontier regions who had been dependent for their livelihoods and lives upon singleshot firearms.

President Lincoln's personal intervention was necessary to get Berdan's project—with his demand for breech-loading rifles—accepted by the War Department. The Army's chief of ordnance, J. W. Ripley, wanted to issue Springfield muzzle-loaders despite the fact Sharps rifles and Colt repeating pistols had proven their greater reliability and accuracy on the Western frontier in the 1850s.

First Regt., U. S. Sharpshooters, had four companies from New York, three from Michigan, one each from New Hampshire, Vermont, with Berdan as commander. The Second Regt., with Henry A. Post as colonel initially, had two companies from New Hampshire, two from Vermont, one each from Pennsylvania, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota. Homer R. Stoughton had succeeded Post in 1863, when the sharpshooters distinguished themselves particularly at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg.

Both regiments were continually in demand from Army commanders "on account of their wonderful proficiency as such, and they undoubtedly killed more men than any other regiments in the Army," Fox sums up.

Here's How To Treat Leather-Wear

Leather's leading role in fall and winter fashions means you have a part to perform, too. Leather, the "living" fabric, requires more specialized care than most materials. But the wear it gives in return — and the style splash it's making this season — make it worth respecting these simple rules:

The top tenet is never to let your leather garments get too soiled before doing somthing about them. Spot - freshen them yourself whenever it's necessary. When you think they need all-over cleaning, send them to a professional dry - cleaner trained in handling leathers.

Spot - freshening means taking a dry sponge or terrycloth towel to suede collars and cuffs between wearings. It means occasional "dusting" with a barely damp clothesbrush or with cellophane tape. Small marks can be removed from suedes with an ordinary gum eraser, from smooth leathers with a damp cloth wrung out in mild suds. Solvents, saddle soap and shoe - cleaners won't work so don't try them.

When your leather garment gets wet, allow it to hang free and air-dry gradually. Don't use direct heat for drying or the leather will get stiff.

It is possible to press leather with an iron — with these precautions: Use only a dry iron, set at low heat, over a brown paper "press cloth." Keep that iron moving quickly and constantly, to avoid overheating or leaving a shine on the fabric.

If your leather garments require sewing, keep this in mind: be sure before you stitch, for the stitch marks will show if you must rip or let out. A glove needle or sewing machine are slickest for taking in seams. Hems are best glued with rubber cement, since stitch marks would be permanent. And never use tailor's chalk or pins on leather since these, too, leave scars.

Leather storage is relatively simple. The less you "do," the better. Skip the air -tight enclosure, the harmful spraying. Just give your leather garments plenty of room and plenty of air, as close to the norm in temperature and humidity as you can manage.

Most fashion - conscious women are health - conscious, as well, because they know health is basic to beauty. As one of them, you will appreciate the pamphlet "Personality PLUS Through Diet," available from me, John Robert Powers, through this newspaper for 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠

Commendable restraint by East during both the auction and play of today's hand deprived declarer of information that would assuredly have enabled the latter to walk off with his contract.

While East could not be subjected to criticism for doubling the five club bid holding both minor suit aces, his partner's preëmptive three spade call suggested that little defensive assistance could be expected from that quarter. Prospects for a major killing were not bright, therefore, and East decided that a double would locate cards for the declarer.

West opened the king of spades and the ace was played from dummy on which South discarded a diamond. The six of diamonds was led at the second trick, and East made the key play of the deal when he followed with the trey. Failure on the part of declarer to throw a heart from his hand on the ace of spades strongly suggested that he had no heart losers. Accordingly, East could see that releasing the ace of diamonds would serve only to assist South in the quick establishment of his side suit. Altho his duck risked the loss of an immediate trick, East knew that it would leave declarer with considerable washing to be done before the latter would be in position to claim the hand.

Altho South could have simplified his problems by putting up the king of diamonds when East played low, declarer can hardly be blamed for placing the ace with West under the circumstances. The jack was therefore played from the closed hand and West was in with the queen. A spade return forced declarer to ruff.

South proceeded to establish the diamond suit by ruffing three times in dummy but, in so doing, he was obliged to force his own hand twice more, reducing his trump holding to three, one less than the number held by East. The latter was ultimately able to claim the setting trick with his long club.

Had East played the ace of diamonds at the second trick, it would have enabled declarer to establish his suit with a single ruff, and East would have been restricted to his two aces.

She said the roadway is also known as Slate Hill and that 16 children must walk down the grade on their way to school. The roadway is rutted and should be graded, she told the board.

Commissioner Russell Carder inquired if the road is in the county system but Mrs. Wolfe did not know. The matter was referred to the Roads Department for a check and report back to the board.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been trying to write this letter for several days but I become so furious every time I think about it I am unable to gather my thoughts.

Our son was not accepted into kindergarten this fall because he will not be five years old until November 16th. James is an unusually precocius child. He has been reading for almost a year. He began reciting peotry from memory when he was two and a half, and I don't mean little nursery rhymes. James prefers the classics.

Three children in this block were accepted into kindergarten simply because they were born from seven to twelve weeks earlier than our James. None of these children are particularly bright. I refuse to believe that they are better prepared for school than our son. When are the schools going to remodel the archaic entrance requirements and take into consideration the total child instead of just his birthday? — INDIGNANT

DEAR IN: It's awfully hard for a teacher or a superintendent to tell an adoring mother that her genius son (who may well be brilliant) is not emotionally ready for school. The child who is reciting Keats may not be ready for kindergarten, regardless of what his mother thinks.

It is true that some older children are not ready either, but the most workable overall rule of thumb is to establish an age for entrance and stick to it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure you do some good, but I want you to know that you do some harm once in a while, too.

A cousin of mine is getting married around Christmas. He asked me to be his best man at his wedding and I said I would. He then asked me if I owned a tux and I said, "No." He told me I would have to rent one because the wedding is going to be a fancy affair. When I asked who was going to pay for the tux rental he said, "Ann Landers says you are."

I think this is all wrong and I don't care who says otherwise. I didn't ask my cousin if I could be his best man. HE asked ME. Why should I have to pay money out of my own pocket to do him a favor?

Please print this right away and tell me if you actually made up this crazy law. It doesn't sound like you. But then, you hear from so many nuts it's possible that you have turned a little nutty yourself. Thank you. — BROKE

DEAR BROKE: Yes, I do hear from some nuts, but then I get some lovely letters from charming people like you, so it evens out.

I did not make up the "law." It is a tradition that the members of the wedding party pay for their own outfits. It is considered an honor and a privilege to have been selected — and honors and privileges often entail responsibilities.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 35, married for the second time and have two teenage children by my first marriage. These children live with my wife and me.

Three months ago I met a girl, 30, who came to work at the plant. She is married for the second time, also. This woman has three children by her first marriage.

We eat lunch together every day and she has told me that her second marriage is not working out. I'm in love for the first time in my life. Bells ring, I get a queasy feeling in my stomach, I get to work early, leave late, hate to see the weekend come, ect. I think of her constantly.

Should I tell her how I feel and see if a third marriage for both of us can be arranged? — THE VIRGINIAN

DEAR VIRGINIAN: Number three would be no better than (and no different from) Number One or Number Two after a few months. Stick with what you have and make it work.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mayor, Council Hold Meeting At Westernport

Minister Renamed To Commission

WESTERNPORT — Mayor and Commissioners at a meeting this week re-appointed Rev. Henry G. Laube to the Westernport Planning Commission for a five-year term. His present two-year term expired recently.

Rev. Mr. Laube, pastor of the First Baptist Church, is a member ex-officio of the Land Use and Building Citizens Advisory Committee.

Harry Reeves made application for water and sewer tap and building permit for a new home being constructed on Wood Street. He inquired about the most feasible location for the sewer line tie in. Commissioners Robert Kalbaugh and L. C. Lambert will investigate the matter.

This raised the question of numerous building contractors and home owners doing extensive construction work without first applying for the required permit. Occasionally, no provision is made for practical or approved tie-ins with municipal facilities.

The group decided to halt any construction begun in the future until the permit is issued.

It was decided to secure price bids for installation of 200 feet of reinforced concrete sewer pipe on Central Avenue. The pipe was purchased at a cost of $7.05 a foot.

Mayor Ray L. Wilt said the recent wage increase for the town employes included paid holidays.

Adjustment was made on a water bill for Robert Gerfin, who complained that his meter did not register properly.

There was discussion concerning a new police ordinance and obtaining radar equipment. No action was taken.

Extensive construction work continues on Poplar Street and it was disclosed five poles are to be moved. This is preliminary work to make the street ready for hard surfacing, a project earmarked for next summer.

Dr. Shockley Meets County Board Members

Members of the Allegany County Board of Education had the opportunity yesterday afternoon to meet and hear briefly from Dr. Robert Joseph Shockley, new assistant superintendent of schools for curriculum.

Dr. Shockley told the board that he has visited all but four of the 34 schools in the county since classes started three weeks ago.

He acknowledged that it was too early to have any detailed recommendations on curriculums. However, he said he heard a number of comments in support of greater emphasis on social studies in the elementary schools, the need for more direction for elementary school teachers, lack of sufficient time for the teaching of science, and the need for some evaluation of the high school English program.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said that the English teachers of both Allegany and Bruce high schools have started a study of their curriculum.

During yesterday's session the board heard a report from Robert MacDonald Bruce, attorney to the board, concerning the liability of the board when school facilities are being used for non-school public functions. Advice will be sought from the insurance counselor, John E. Geare.

"Piggybacking" Makes Progress

"Piggybacking" in the U. S. transportation industry is not new, although attention drawn to the increasing cooperation between motor lines and railroads in combining the efficiencies peculiar to each, has made it seem so.

At least as far back as 1843, when the Pennsylvania Public Works operated a combination railroad and canal system from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, the utilization of different modes of transport to get a shipment to its desination most economically has been tried.

Only in more recent years has fierce competition between transport mediums prevented cooperative efforts from parlaying cost savings into profits for shipper and hauler alike. Modern piggybacking was born in 1954, and after only a short period of uncertain experimentation its use received wide acclaim.

Strangely, Washington has been slow to act in adopting rules for cooperative carrier arrangements. Lack of restrictions by government agencies may be at least partially responsible for the rapid rise in arrangements between trucking and railroad companies. Trailer-on-flatcar (TOFC) operations have increased by more than one-third since 1961.

There is nothing to inhibit the further growth of TOFC, if the Interstate Commerce Commission accepts the recommendations of its hearing examiners. Recognizing that a void now exists in regulations governing the type of service offered by TOFC, the examiners' report nevertheless makes it clear that caution should guide development of rules for this type of carrier system.

It should not be necessary for ICC commissioners to take more than a fleeting glance at the financial troubles besetting some segments of the transportation industry to reach the same conclusion as that of the examiners—that the "greatest amount of flexibility" is required to "make TOFC operate at peak efficiency."

Tempering Sympathy

The British, in relinquishing their hold on their old colonies, have been exceedingly fair and decent. But in freeing everything that remains of the old British empire in Southeast Asia to permit the birth of an independent Federation of Malaysia, they are learning that decency has its handicaps. For their fair-mindedness about Malaysia, they have incurred the covetous wrath of those rampant new imperialists, the Indonesians, who want part of the Malaysian territory for themselves. It was this covetousness that pushed the Indonesian mobs to loot and burn the three-story British Embassy in Jakarta, the capital of Indonesia.

Sukarno, the boss of Indonesia, has apologized for the action, but he shows no signs himself of repudiating the rampant new imperialism that stirred ten thousand of his subjects to their incendiary hooliganism. He still wants Malaysian territory for himself. So, incidentally, do the Filipinos, who have put in a shadowy claim to North Borneo.

This substitution of new imperialisms for old makes a mockery of the hopes of the world for a new spirit. A united Congo, far from being grateful for help in establishing peace within its own borders, gives sanctuary to a Holden Roberto, who would "free" neighboring Portuguese Angola by clubbing and murdering all those Angolans who would prefer to be led into the future by some other savior. The newly emergent nations of Africa are doing their best to turn the UN into a power mechanism that will interfere in the internal affairs of any member nation that displeases the majority. In Burma, the strong man General Ne Win is repaying help from Britain and the United States by making deals with the pro-Mao Tse-tung Burmese Communist Party.

In general, the behavior of many of the new nations, which should be taking world leadership by bending over backward to uphold strict standards of decency and justice, recalls the gloomy observation made by old General Tasker Bliss at the Versailles Peace Conference of 1919. "The submerged nations," so Bliss wrote home to his wife, "are coming to the surface and as soon as they appear they fly at somebody's throat. They are like mosquitos, vicious from the moment of birth."

Because of the behavior of the Indonesians toward the British, the Macmillan government deserves all manner of sympathy. But the United States should temper its expression of condolences with some regretful reproaches. For the British have done very little toward us very much as the Indonesians have been behaving in destroying British property and menacing the lives of British citizens.

Castro has even invaded British territory in the Bahamas in the effort to maintain his own maritime equivalent of the Berlin Wall. The British finally got around to protesting this act of invasion. But they still persist in trading with Castro, letting ship after ship carry the Union Jack into Cuban harbors. This makes a travesty of the efforts of the United States to maintain an embargo of Castro, whose imperialism is even now threatening the integrity of the British Colony of British Guiana, which will probably be freed only to fall into the hands of Castroites.

Since January 1 the U. S. Maritime Commission has maintained a blacklist of Free World ships that are trading with Cuba. The names of fifty-three British ships now appear on that blacklist, which makes Britain an even worse offender than Greece, which has let fifty-two ships take goods to Cuba. Our way of punishing Britons and Greeks has been to deny a blacklisted ship the right to carry U. S. government cargo. This means nothing to the British or the Greeks, who have other ships to send into U. S. ports. By all means, let us make a united front with the British in opposing the imperialist designs of Indonesia's Sukarno on old British territories in Malaysia. But in exchange, the British should help us to deal with that most troublesome bone in our own throat, Fidel Castro.

'Yeah—How About Some Structural Changes?'

John McCone Deserves Much Credit For Test Ban Treaty Ratification

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—A lot of people were responsible for putting across what President Kennedy called "new rays of hope . . . up the steep and difficult path toward comprehensive disarmament" namely, the test ban treaty. But here are some who deserve special credit:

John McCone, head of Central Intelligence, who gave convincing testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from the vantage point of having been chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, under secretary of the Air Force, and now head of CIA.

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, R-Ill., the minority leader who passed up partisan politics with a statesmanlike speech urging Republicans to support the treaty.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R. I., who early in the debate gave one of the most impassioned and effective pleas for ratification. As a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and as one not given to sentiment, the little Italio-American opened his coat, clutched at his heart and said:

"I say to those who have doubts about the treaty that I want them to open their hearts and look into their consciences. I want them to realize what they may be doing. If by their vote they destroy and kill the treaty, God help us, Go help us."

Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose guidance and wisdom was so important in steering the treaty through both his committee and the Senate.

No. 1 Test Ban Enemy

The man who tried the hardest to defeat the test ban treaty, and for a time seemed to be making the most headway, was Dr. Edward Teller, the Hungarian-born scientist who had won the name of "Father of the H-Bomb."

Dr. Teller came to Washington in advance of the treaty debate to have breakfast with Congressmen and argue against the treaty. He came to Washington during the treaty debate to dine privately with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., whom he converted, and to lunch publicly at the National Press Club where his dictatorial manner in dealing with TV operators did not win him converts.

The defeat of the test ban treaty became a personal crusade for Dr. Teller. He has considered the H-Bomb, of which he is supposed to be the father, a weapon of liberation, freedom and justice. He disagrees violently with Leo Szilard, Robert Oppenheimer and other scientists who feel a certain guilt about having brought such terrible weapons of destruction into the world. To Teller, the test ban treaty amounts to a black market against his weapon, a recognition of the anti-social nature of the bomb.

Hence his vigorous, almost violent opposition: and his masterminding of the work by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. Senators Stennis, Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., have long thought the sun rose and set in Dr. Teller.

When other Senators diagnosed his objectiveness, however, they found that Teller had served as consultant for various big defense contractors at fees of $1,000 a day. He even retired from government work so that he could accept these fees without a conflict of interest.

Who Was Real Father

They also found that some other scientists are decidedly skeptical about both Dr. Teller's objectivity and his accomplishments. They know that Dr. Stan Ulam is credited by many scientists as being the real father of the H-bomb despite the publicity given Dr. Teller.

And there is that revealing testimony of Dr. Hans Bethe, director of the Los Alamos Theoretical Division of the Manhattan Project during the war who was Dr. Teller's boss.

"I relied . . ." said Dr. Bethe, "I hoped to rely very heavily on Teller to help our work . . . It turned out he did not want to cooperate. He did not want to work on the line of research that everybody else had agreed to as the fruitful line . . . So that in the end there was no choice but to relieve him to pursue his own ideas entirely unrelated to World War II."

This is the man who labored so ardently to defeat a treaty which already has begun to pave the way for better understanding and peace.

The man who finally pulled the rug out from under Dr. Teller was CIA Director John McCone, who told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Teller didn't have all his facts straight regarding Russian and American nuclear strength.

"Do you know whether he has access to the facts?" asked Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

"No, he has not," McCone replied.

No French Wine

President Kennedy was in a jovial mood as he welcomed Rep. Jack Shelley, the California Democrat who is running for mayor of San Francisco. Two trays were brought in and the two men settled down for a chicken lunch at the President's desk.

"Jack," said the President, "I want you to see that I didn't forget."

Kennedy held up a bottle of wine.

"It's California wine."

The President chuckled. "I remember how indignant you were when I brought a present of French wine aboard your vessel for an evening's cruise along the Potomac.

"You were adamant that no French wine could be served on your vessel, 'The Golden Gate'. You said no ship named for San Francisco's harbor could be so desecrated.

"I think you would have liked to have thrown me as well as the French wine overboard. So I have California wine today."

JFK Speech Omits One Basic Fact Of Cold War

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — A very good speech was delivered the other day by President Kennedy before the United Nations General Assembly. There may be some disagreement about the practicability of his proposal for a joint effort with the Soviet Union to go to the moon—in fact, many people probably wish there could be a joint proposal to call off the stunt altogether so the same billions could be used to help poverty-stricken peoples. But, in the main, Mr. Kennedy constructed an address full of implicit meanings that will be hailed in the field of diplomacy as an encouraging attitude.

It was important, for instance, to give the cause of the United Nations a stimulus so as to persuade many member governments to pay their share of the expenses for current programs. So, too, was the emphasis on the successful negotiation of the treaty limiting nuclear tests. There was also a brief but significant reminder, to the rest of the world that "the United States since the close of the war has sent over $100 billion worth of assistance to nations seeking economic viability." There was a subtle suggestion, moreover, that more help should be forthcoming from those countries which now can afford it and which must in turn recognize "their responsibility to less-developed nations."

While the President endeavored to interpret the signing of the treaty limiting nuclear tests as possibly reducing world tension, he rightly stressed nevertheless the need for "safeguards against surprise attack" and the possibility of "war by accident or miscalculation."

Perhaps the most difficult and perplexing topic with which the President had to deal in his address was the continuance of the "cold war." He spoke hopefully of the recent nuclear test negotiations as having brought a "pause in the cold war." He suggested that the responsibilities of the Soviet Union and the United States in seeking peace "require our two countries to concentrate less on our differences and more on the means of resolving them peacefully." But lest this be construed as any indifference to the basic issues, Mr. Kennedy said that "no service is performed by failing to make clear our disagreements." He pointedly added that "a central difference is the belief of the American people in self-determination for all peoples."

It was here that the President reiterated this government's belief that "the people of Germany and Berlin must be free to reunite their capital and their country." He declared, also, that Cuba "must be free" and that "in all the world—in Eastern Europe, as well as western, in Southern Africa as well as Northern, in old nations as well as new—people must be free to choose their own future, without discrimination or dictation, and without coercion or subversion."

The President appeared to be conscious of the activities in the U. N. of the organized bloc of Afro-Asian nations. While he condemned "all forms of human oppresion" and expressed his disapproval of "apartheid," he made for the first time a comment that shows signs of understanding the problems of whites in South Africa. He said that "we do not advocate the rights of black Africans in order to drive out white Africans." He made his plea on the basis of "the right of all men to equal protection and opportunity."

There was one note lacking in the President's speech. The omission may have been due to diplomatic expediency—a desire to say nothing at present that would be offensive to the Moscow regime. But the fact remains that all the hopes for peace in the world will be imperilled and tensions will continue so long as the Communist government is not removed or substantially changed by the will of the Soviet people.

Mr. Kennedy mentioned in one sentence a very vital point, but it needs elaboration and reiteration. He said:

"We must continue to seek agreement on a freer flow of information and people from east to west and west to east."

The very same speech of the President, for instance, was censored in the Soviet Press so the Russian people couldn't read all of it. Other means of communication through such private agencies as "Radio Free Europe" become more and more necessary now in making contacts not only inside Russia but inside the countries of all the captive nations in Eastern Europe. Mr. Kennedy touched abstractly on the basic issue when he said:

"For we believe that truth is stronger than error, and that freedom is more enduring than coercion. And in the contest for a better life, all the world can be the winner."

But all the diplomatic phrases, restrained expressions and implicit avowals of some basic principles in international intercourse cannot erase from the worried minds of peoples everywhere the fear of a big war emerging some day from such critical situations as currently make headlines in the newspapers as they tell of the dangers in Vietnam and in Cuba.

The U. S. Secretary of Defense and the chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff are this week in Vietnam—many thousands of miles away from this country as American military forces seek to align themselves against Communist intrigue and subversion and guerrilla warfare. All this is proof that some day realism must be articulated so that the Russian people can hear it. For unless the concept of world domination by infiltrating weak governments everywhere is repudiated by the people behind the Iron Curtain, the "cold war" cannot but lead to the nuclear war that nobody wants.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TRICK — The captial's Young Democrats have a full-fledged mystery on their hands. Someone forged a letter on their stationery and fouled up what was to have been an important rally. It began in August when an officer of the group invited Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., to speak at their meeting. The Negro congressman accepted.

A few days before the meeting was to be held, Powell received another letter, on the same stationery, canceling the speaking engagement. The reason given was that the meeting would come too close to the civil rights march on Washington and the group was fearful that it would not attract the numbers it might otherwise attract.

Powell accepted the reason and made other plans. In the last minute, when the group was about to meet, it was discovered that Powell would not speak. The letter was examined and found to be a forgery. Another speaker was found after a hectic search.

However, that isn't the end of the tale. Obviously the forger knew Powell had been invited and had access to the group's stationery. Just as obviously the forger was intent on sabotaging the meeting. A fact and a question have the Young Democrats upset. Obviously, the forger was one of their group. The question is: why would a Young Democrat seek to foul up the Young Democrats?

The sovereign state of North Carolina is fighting a small, defenseless woman. The state is bound to lose. Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton wants a driver's licensce, and there isn't anything this side of the Lord's Judgment which will keep her from getting it. The fact that she is 93 years old s irrelevant. She may not drive well, but she drives fast, and that's something.

The state has a law which specifies that drivers over 80 must undergo a complete test every four years. Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton—known to her friends as "A.A." — went through the test at 89 and failed on backing into a parking space. She went back to her neat little house on Myers Lane, in Greensboro, and thought about it. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, has thin snowy hair, dresses in excellent taste, and panders to her feminine vanity by wearing both corset and uplift.

Sometimes, she wears a velvet ribbon around her throat. She phoned her girl friends—all in the 70s, 80s and 90s—and told them that she proposed to fight the State of North Carolina right into the ground. The girls applauded, because, without A.A., none of them ever get out of the house. A.A.'s car is for riding and chatting. It is also the means of getting to funerals.

A.A. went back for that license six times. And six times the sovereign state of North Carolina turned this fragile bit of southern womanhood down. She went back the seventh time, and passed the test. She celebrated by pouring down a road one day at 93 miles per hour. She passed a car making 80. The lights of another car were coming up against her. As they all squeaked by, A.A. shrieked "Oopsy", and everybody had a good laugh. Still, in 40 years, the lady has never had an accident.

She is, by any standard, indomitable. Five years ago she sustained a slight stroke. She returned to consciousness with men patting her cheeks. She opened one eye and said: "For goodness sake, pat-up—up—not down." She is also a member of the local literary club, and does research on Greensboro history. She told her grandniece, a playwright named Maryat Lee, that she likes to put "a little dirt in it." Once she wrote about a devil-may-care man who said "Dammit."

About 80 years ago, she attended a Young Ladies Seminary in her native Kentucky. Later, she taught school. She grew up under a cruel stepmother whom she called "The Worm." Mrs. Attaway Dyer had numerous beaux, and, after tossing her pretty head over the matter for a long time, she married Mr. Charles Wharton, a Cumberland Presbyterian preacher.

He was a widower, but she didn't think much about his first wife, Floradell, until the reverend passed on to his reward. Then A.A. found he had an old will which specified that he should be buried in the state of Mississippi with Floradell. So A.A. shipped him off and, after all the conditions of the will had been met, shipped him back.

Later, she fell in love with Charlie's cousin, a gay and rich banker named E. P. Wharton. She loved E.P. And E.P. loved A.A. He took her on a honeymoon trip to the Holy Land. When she returned, she was so happy that she began to feel sorry for Floradell. So she had Charlie dug up again and shipped back to Mississippi.

E.P. was good to the poor. He spent money to send Negroes to Negro colleges years ago. He had a big automobile and a big paunch and a big heart. However, he too had been married before. He too had a cemetery plot, and when he passed on, he was with his first wife and some other kin. Now there is only a half grave left for A.A.

But Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton is a fighter. She would like the cemetery to close a small road. Someday, when she dies, her feet will be out in that road. She doesn't want cars driving over them. It will be done. Bet on it.

At 93, A.A. looks 65. She has a tiny voice, persistent and querulous and southern and she reads omnivorously and has as much public spirit as the entire Kennedy family. She makes it her personal business to know everything that is going on in Greensboro and, if she can't find it out in the local newspapers and the Charlotte Observer, she uses the phone and calls her girl friends.

On September 10th, A.A. reached her 93rd birthday, and that durned old license fell due again. All the girls got together for a strategy conference and the consensus was that A.A. had better start practicing backing up. She would not do it. She had done it four years ago, and had proved she could do it on the seventh attempt.

Until that day, she went whizzing through the streets, sitting straight and high. Now the car sits in front of the house. She went to the motor vehicle inspector's office and took the test, A.A. failed. For a moment, her courage flagged. She went home and put a "For Sale" sign in her car. Since then, the sign has come down, and A.A. is practicing backing up.

This is something that North Carolina better learn, too . . .

Exercise After Recovery From Heart Attack

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Ten men who had recovered satisfactorily from a heart attack volunteered to exercise on a treadmill in the same way as 20 presumably healthy persons. The cardiacs did just as well as the others, with no strain on the heart, suggesting that they should be able to perform their normal jobs. The machine was set for the amount of work that 40 per cent of the male population is capable of doing.

The cardiac muscle usually heals completely after coronary thrombosis. On the other hand, the basic cause remains and is not much different from what existed months or years prior to the attack in question. What do we mean?

The underlying cause of the usual heart attack is hardening of the coronary arteries. These vessels supply the heart muscle with blood and, as such, represent the most vital pipelines any of us possess. When fatty substances such as cholesterol adhere to the inner lining, the caliber of the vessel is reduced gradually. Suddenly one segment is plugged and the heart attack is in the making.

Some victims describe the ensuing distress as a burning sensation or a viselike, squeezing pressure over the breastbone. At any rate, it is a new and frightening experience and the majority of sufferers are anxious and eager to call the physician. Pain killing drugs, oxygen, and bed rest bring relief.

Pain comes from a dime sized section of the heart muscle that was robbed of blood by obstruction of the artery. The cells die off gradually and the process reaches its height about 10 days later when the fibers are soft and weak. From this time on, healing takes place and the dead muscle fibers are replaced by scar tissue. By the end of 12 weeks, the area is as solid as before.

The artery continues to be obstructed but new connections are made with other vessels to bring nourishment into the bloodless area. In some instances, the occluded segment is bridged by a new vessel. The exception is when a large branch of a coronary artery becomes plugged, depriving a sizable part of the heart muscle of blood. This is a more serious situation and those who survive may not be able to exert at a later date without developing chest distress.

TOMORROW: Sensible reducing.

MARKED INFANT

Mrs. Q. writes: Our baby has dark red hand marks on her cheek. Do these marks go away?

REPLY

Yes, if they are stork marks, but no, if they are birthmarks. Bring this matter to the attention of your physician.

FROZEN ULCER

L. C. writes: My husband is thinking of having his ulcer frozen. Do you think it is safe?

REPLY

Possibly, but we don't know as yet what might happen to the lining of the stomach or duodenum after being frozen.

MUMPS IN CHILDHOOD

A. S. writes: Is mumps in young children dangerous to life and health?

REPLY

Childhood is the best period of life in which to develop this disease. It is mild at that time and complications seldom are serious except perhaps mumps encephalitis.

BRINY WATER

W. K. writes: I noticed your health hint "Never drink sea water." Why isn't it good?

REPLY

The salt content of sea water is to high for the body to assimilate, especially when the individual is dehydrated. A swalow or two is not harmful.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

"Piggybacking" Makes Progress

"Piggybacking" in the U. S. transportation industry is not new, although attention drawn to the increasing cooperation between motor lines and railroads in combining the efficiencies peculiar to each, has made it seem so.

At least as far back as 1843, when the Pennsylvania Public Works operated a combination railroad and canal system from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, the utilization of different modes of transport to get a shipment to its desination most economically has been tried.

Only in more recent years has fierce competition between transport mediums prevented cooperative efforts from parlaying cost savings into profits for shipper and hauler alike. Modern piggybacking was born in 1954, and after only a short period of uncertain experimentation its use received wide acclaim.

Strangely, Washington has been slow to act in adopting rules for cooperative carrier arrangements. Lack of restrictions by government agencies may be at least partially responsible for the rapid rise in arrangements between trucking and railroad companies. Trailer-on-flatcar (TOFC) operations have increased by more than one-third since 1961.

There is nothing to inhibit the further growth of TOFC, if the Interstate Commerce Commission accepts the recommendations of its hearing examiners. Recognizing that a void now exists in regulations governing the type of service offered by TOFC, the examiners' report nevertheless makes it clear that caution should guide development of rules for this type of carrier system.

It should not be necessary for ICC commissioners to take more than a fleeting glance at the financial troubles besetting some segments of the transportation industry to reach the same conclusion as that of the examiners—that the "greatest amount of flexibility" is required to "make TOFC operate at peak efficiency."

These Days

Tempering Sympathy

The British, in relinquishing their hold on their old colonies, have been exceedingly fair and decent. But in freeing everything that remains of the old British empire in Southeast Asia to permit the birth of an independent Federation of Malaysia, they are learning that decency has its handicaps. For their fair-mindedness about Malaysia, they have incurred the covetous wrath of those rampant new imperialists, the Indonesians, who want part of the Malaysian territory for themselves. It was this covetousness that pushed the Indonesian mobs to loot and burn the three-story British Embassy in Jakarta, the capital of Indonesia.

Sukarno, the boss of Indonesia, has apologized for the action, but he shows no signs himself of repudiating the rampant new imperialism that stirred ten thousand of his subjects to their incendiary hooliganism. He still wants Malaysian territory for himself. So, incidentally, do the Filipinos, who have put in a shadowy claim to North Borneo.

This substitution of new imperialisms for old makes a mockery of the hopes of the world for a new spirit. A united Congo, far from being grateful for help in establishing peace within its own borders, gives sanctuary to a Holden Roberto, who would "free" neighboring Portuguese Angola by clubbing and murdering all those Angolans who would prefer to be led into the future by some other savior. The newly emergent nations of Africa are doing their best to turn the UN into a power mechanism that will interfere in the internal affairs of any member nation that displeases the majority. In Burma, the strong man General Ne Win is repaying help from Britain and the United States by making deals with the pro-Mao Tse-tung Burmese Communist Party.

In general, the behavior of many of the new nations, which should be taking world leadership by bending over backward to uphold strict standards of decency and justice, recalls the gloomy observation made by old General Tasker Bliss at the Versailles Peace Conference of 1919. "The submerged nations," so Bliss wrote home to his wife, "are coming to the surface and as soon as they appear they fly at somebody's throat. They are like mosquitos, vicious from the moment of birth."

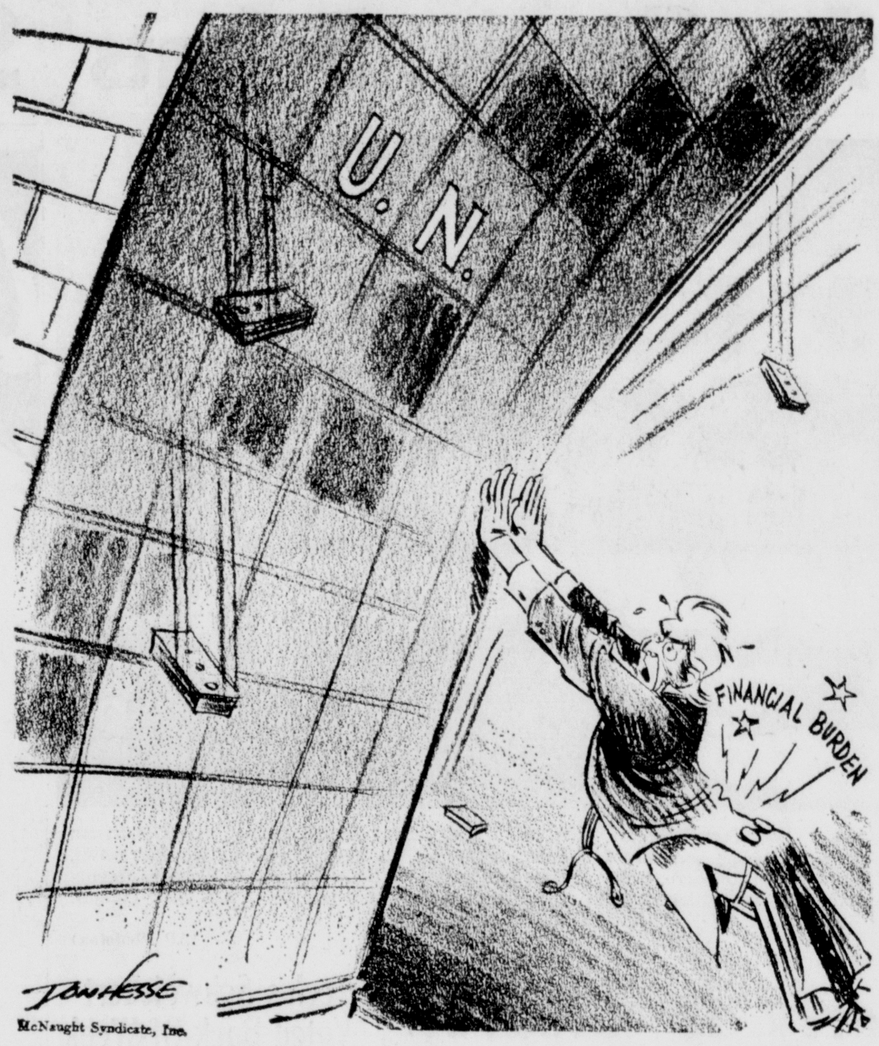

Because of the behavior of the Indonesians toward the British, the Macmillan government deserves all manner of sympathy. But the United States should temper its expression of condolences with some regretful reproaches. For the British have done very little toward us very much as the Indonesians have been behaving in destroying British property and menacing the lives of British citizens.

Castro has even invaded British territory in the Bahamas in the effort to maintain his own maritime equivalent of the Berlin Wall. The British finally got around to protesting this act of invasion. But they still persist in trading with Castro, letting ship after ship carry the Union Jack into Cuban harbors. This makes a travesty of the efforts of the United States to maintain an embargo of Castro, whose imperialism is even now threatening the integrity of the British Colony of British Guiana, which will probably be freed only to fall into the hands of Castroites.

Since January 1 the U. S. Maritime Commission has maintained a blacklist of Free World ships that are trading with Cuba. The names of fifty-three British ships now appear on that blacklist, which makes Britain an even worse offender than Greece, which has let fifty-two ships take goods to Cuba. Our way of punishing Britons and Greeks has been to deny a blacklisted ship the right to carry U. S. government cargo. This means nothing to the British or the Greeks, who have other ships to send into U. S. ports. By all means, let us make a united front with the British in opposing the imperialist designs of Indonesia's Sukarno on old British territories in Malaysia. But in exchange, the British should help us to deal with that most troublesome bone in our own throat, Fidel Castro.

John McCone Deserves Much Credit For Test Ban Treaty Ratification

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—A lot of people were responsible for putting across what President Kennedy called "new rays of hope . . . up the steep and difficult path toward comprehensive disarmament" namely, the test ban treaty. But here are some who deserve special credit:

John McCone, head of Central Intelligence, who gave convincing testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from the vantage point of having been chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, under secretary of the Air Force, and now head of CIA.

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, R-Ill., the minority leader who passed up partisan politics with a statesmanlike speech urging Republicans to support the treaty.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R. I., who early in the debate gave one of the most impassioned and effective pleas for ratification. As a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and as one not given to sentiment, the little Italio-American opened his coat, clutched at his heart and said:

"I say to those who have doubts about the treaty that I want them to open their hearts and look into their consciences. I want them to realize what they may be doing. If by their vote they destroy and kill the treaty, God help us, Go help us."

Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose guidance and wisdom was so important in steering the treaty through both his committee and the Senate.

No. 1 Test Ban Enemy

The man who tried the hardest to defeat the test ban treaty, and for a time seemed to be making the most headway, was Dr. Edward Teller, the Hungarian-born scientist who had won the name of "Father of the H-Bomb."

Dr. Teller came to Washington in advance of the treaty debate to have breakfast with Congressmen and argue against the treaty. He came to Washington during the treaty debate to dine privately with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., whom he converted, and to lunch publicly at the National Press Club where his dictatorial manner in dealing with TV operators did not win him converts.

The defeat of the test ban treaty became a personal crusade for Dr. Teller. He has considered the H-Bomb, of which he is supposed to be the father, a weapon of liberation, freedom and justice. He disagrees violently with Leo Szilard, Robert Oppenheimer and other scientists who feel a certain guilt about having brought such terrible weapons of destruction into the world. To Teller, the test ban treaty amounts to a black market against his weapon, a recognition of the anti-social nature of the bomb.

Hence his vigorous, almost violent opposition; and his master-minding of the work by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Chairman of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. Senators Stennis, Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., have long thought the sun rose and set in Dr. Teller.

When other Senators diagnosed his objectiveness, however, they found that Teller had served as consultant for various big defense contractors at fees of $1,000 a day. He even retired from government work so that he could accept these fees without a conflict of interest.

Who Was Real Father

They also found that some other scientists are decidedly skeptical about both Dr. Teller's objectivity and his accomplishments. They know that Dr. Stan Ulam is credited by many scientists as being the real father of the H-bomb despite the publicity given Dr. Teller.

And there is that revealing testimony of Dr. Hans Bethe, director of the Los Alamos Theoretical Division of the Manhattan Project during the war who was Dr. Teller's boss.

"I relied . . ." said Dr. Bethe, "I hoped to rely very heavily on Teller to help our work . . . It turned out he did not want to cooperate. He did not want to work on the line of research that everybody else had agreed to as the fruitful line . . . So that in the end there was no choice but to relieve him to pursue his own ideas entirely unrelated to World War II."

This is the man who labored so ardently to defeat a treaty which already has begun to pave the way for better understanding and peace.

The man who finally pulled the rug out from under Dr. Teller was CIA Director John McCone, who told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Teller didn't have all his facts straight regarding Russian and American nuclear strength.

"Do you know whether he has access to the facts?" asked Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

"No, he has not," McCone replied.

No French Wine

President Kennedy was in a jovial mood as he welcomed Rep. Jack Shelley, the California Democrat who is running for mayor of San Francisco. Two trays were brought in and the two men settled down for a chicken lunch at the President's desk.

"Jack," said the President, "I want you to see that I didn't forget."

Kennedy held up a bottle of wine.

"It's California wine."

The President chuckled. "I remember how indignant you were when I brought a present of French wine aboard your vessel for an evening's cruise along the Potomac.

"You were adamant that no French wine could be served on your vessel, 'The Golden Gate'. You said no ship named for San Francisco's harbor could be so desecrated.

"I think you would have liked to have thrown me as well as the French wine overboard. So I have California wine today."

MARKED INFANT

Mrs. Q. writes: Our baby has dark red hand marks on her cheek. Do these marks go away?

REPLY

Yes, if they are stork marks, but no, if they are birthmarks. Bring this matter to the attention of your physician.

FROZEN ULCER

L. C. writes: My husband is thinking of having his ulcer frozen. Do you think it is safe?

REPLY

Possibly, but we don't know as yet what might happen to the lining of the stomach or duodenum after being frozen.

MUMPS IN CHILDHOOD

A. S. writes: Is mumps in young children dangerous to life and health?

REPLY

Childhood is the best period of life in which to develop this disease. It is mild at that time and complications seldom are serious except perhaps mumps encephalitis.

BRINY WATER

W. K. writes: I noticed your health hint "Never drink sea water." Why isn't it good?

REPLY

The salt content of sea water is to high for the body to assimilate, especially when the individual is dehydrated. A swalow or two is not harmful.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The sovereign state of North Carolina is fighting a small, defenseless woman. The state is bound to lose. Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton wants a driver's licensce, and there isn't anything this side of the Lord's Judgment which will keep her from getting it. The fact that she is 93 years old s irrelevant. She may not drive well, but she drives fast, and that's something.

The state has a law which specifies that drivers over 80 must undergo a complete test every four years. Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton—known to her friends as "A.A." — went through the test at 89 and failed on backing into a parking space. She went back to her neat little house on Myers Lane, in Greensboro, and thought about it. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, has thin snowy hair, dresses in excellent taste, and panders to her feminine vanity by wearing both corset and uplift.

Sometimes, she wears a velvet ribbon around her throat. She phoned her girl friends—all in the 70s, 80s and 90s—and told them that she proposed to fight the State of North Carolina right into the ground. The girls applauded, because, without A.A., none of them ever get out of the house. A.A.'s car is for riding and chatting. It is also the means of getting to funerals.

A.A. went back for that license six times. And six times the sovereign state of North Carolina turned this fragile bit of southern womanhood down. She went back the seventh time, and passed the test. She celebrated by pouring down a road one day at 93 miles per hour. She passed a car making 80. The lights of another car were coming up against her. As they all squeaked by, A.A. shrieked "Oopsy", and everybody had a good laugh. Still, in 40 years, the lady has never had an accident.

She is, by any standard, indomitable. Five years ago she sustained a slight stroke. She returned to consciousness with men patting her cheeks. She opened one eye and said: "For goodness sake, pat-up—up—not down." She is also a member of the local literary club, and does research on Greensboro history. She told her grandniece, a playwright named Maryat Lee, that she likes to put "a little dirt in it." Once she wrote about a devil-may-care man who said "Dammit."

About 80 years ago, she attended a Young Ladies Seminary in her native Kentucky. Later, she taught school. She grew up under a cruel stepmother whom she called "The Worm." Mrs. Attaway Dyer had numerous beaux, and, after tossing her pretty head over the matter for a long time, she married Mr. Charles Wharton, a Cumberland Presbyterian preacher.

He was a widower, but she didn't think much about his first wife, Floradell, until the reverend passed on to his reward. Then A.A. found he had an old will which specified that he should be buried in the state of Mississippi with Floradell. So A.A. shipped him off and, after all the conditions of the will had been met, shipped him back.

Later, she fell in love with Charlie's cousin, a gay and rich banker named E. P. Wharton. She loved E.P. And E.P. loved A.A. He took her on a honeymoon trip to the Holy Land. When she returned, she was so happy that she began to feel sorry for Floradell. So she had Charlie dug up again and shipped back to Mississippi.

E.P. was good to the poor. He spent money to send Negroes to Negro colleges years ago. He had a big automobile and a big paunch and a big heart. However, he too had been married before. He too had a cemetery plot, and when he passed on, he was with his first wife and some other kin. Now there is only a half grave left for A.A.

But Mrs. Attaway Dyer Wharton Wharton is a fighter. She would like the cemetery to close a small road. Someday, when she dies, her feet will be out in that road. She doesn't want cars driving over them. It will be done. Bet on it.

At 93, A.A. looks 65. She has a tiny voice, persistent and querulous and southern and she reads omnivorously and has as much public spirit as the entire Kennedy family. She makes it her personal business to know everything that is going on in Greensboro and, if she can't find it out in the local newspapers and the Charlotte Observer, she uses the phone and calls her girl friends.

On September 10th, A.A. reached her 93rd birthday, and that durned old license fell due again. All the girls got together for a strategy conference and the consensus was that A.A. had better start practicing backing up. She would not do it. She had done it four years ago, and had proved she could do it on the seventh attempt.

Until that day, she went whizzing through the streets, sitting straight and high. Now the car sits in front of the house. She went to the motor vehicle inspector's office and took the test, A.A. failed. For a moment, her courage flagged. She went home and put a "For Sale" sign in her car. Since then, the sign has come down, and A.A. is practicing backing up.

This is something that North Carolina better learn, too . . .

Dodgers Clinch Pennant As Chicago Defeats St. Louis, 6-3

Wobbly Cards Suffer Sixth Straight Loss

Cubs Rally In 8th For 3 Runs To Win, McDaniel Is Victor

By ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Cubs scored three runs in the eighth inning Tuesday to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, and clinch the National League pennant for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

It was the sixth straight defeat for the stumbling second - place Cardinals and wiped out their last chance to catch the Dodgers, who thus qualified to meet the American League champion New York Yankees in the World Series opening in New York on Oct. 2.

With only four games left to play, the Cards had 91 victories. The Dodgers, going into Tuesday night's game against the New York Mets, had 96.

The Cardinals were wobbly at the end of their pennant quest, like a fighter about to be knocked out. They made three errors, giving the Cubs one unearned run, and pitcher Bob Gibson made two wild pitches in the decisive eighth inning to put the leading runs in scoring position for Chicago.

Rallied In Seventh

After trailing 3-0 early in the game, the Cardinals had kept their faint hopes alive by rallying for three runs in the seventh inning to tie the score.

But a rookie, Jim Stewart, started the Redbirds' downfall in the last half of the eighth inning when he opened with a single and advanced to second on one of Gibson's wild pitches. Gibson then walked Lou Brock and served up his second wild pitch, moving Stewart to third and Brock to second.

For a moment Gibson stood firm on the brink of disaster. He retired Billy Williams, who had homered earlier, on a fly ball and got two strikes on Ron Santo.

But his next three pitches were balls and then Santo, after fouling four times with the count 3-and-2, delivered the fatal blow to the pennant race — a ringing single to left that scored both runners and put the Cubs ahead, 5-3. Santo later scored the final run on Ellis Burton's single to right.

Glen Hobbie and Lindy McDaniel combined on the mound to stifle the St. Louis attack with five hits, but the Cards bunched three of these in the seventh for all of their runs and might have had enough to win except for their misplays.

Groat Was Walked

Dick Groat opened the seventh with a walk and reached third on Stan Musial's single to left. Gary Kolb ran for Musial and both scored on Ken Boyer's triple off the center field fence. Boyer tallied the tying run on George Altman's single.

But McDaniel took over thereafter for Hobbie. While he walked Groat in the eighth and Mike Shannon singled in the ninth, neither runner could reach second as the Cardinals' pennant chances evaporated.

Hobbie, who retired the first nine men to face him, helped the Cubs to their first run with a third inning sacrifice after Merrit Ranew had singled. Stewart then drove in Ranew with grounder which took a bad hop past first baseman Bill White and rolled to the right field grass for a single.

The other Cub runs came when Lou Brock was safe on Groat's error before Billy Williams hit his 24th homer.

McDaniel, although he worked only two frames, won his 13th decision and Gibson, who was replaced by Ron Taylor for the final two outs, took his ninth defeat.

Dodgers Didn't Back Into Flag, Drysdale Says

Refers To Five In Row Over Cards And Bucs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dodger players and brass voiced joy Tuesday at clinching the National League pennant and vowed to play as hard as ever for the remainder of the season.

"It's wonderful," Manager Walter Alston told a well-wisher by telephone from his home.

He added: "I thought the Cardinals would win today and we'd win tonight."

The Cardinals' 6-3 loss to the Cubs at Chicago gave the Dodgers the National League championship.

Celebrate? "We got a ball game tonight," Alston said. "I can't think of a better way to celebrate."

Don Drysdale, one of the club's crack pitchers, commented at his home:

"Anybody who says we backed into the pennant missed our five games last week."

He referred to the Dodgers' three-game sweep of a crucial series with St. Louis, followed by two wins over Pittsburgh.

Asked if he would ease up in his pitching assignment against the New York Mets Tuesday night Drysdale answered, "Oh no, we'll still try to win. I think everybody on the ball club will do the same thing."

There was little visible joy around sprawling Los Angeles as the news came during working hours, and there was no regular broadcast coverage of the Cards-Cubs contest.

The Dodger stadium line has been jammed for days with calls from would-be purchasers of tickets for the World Series between the Dodgers and New York Yankees.

The Dodgers said there is a possibility of a public ticket sale, and if so the time and place will be announced Sept. 30.

Charley Conerly Is Cleared Of Gambling Charges By NFL

Checks He Received From Lewis Covered His Personal Loans

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League said Tuesday its investigations had shown that financial transactions between former New York Giants quarterback Charley Conerly and a Memphis man accused of gambling were blameless.

"Conerly is and always has been a credit to the National Football League," the NFL said in a statement.

Checks Covered Loans

The NFL statement said its investigations showed that checks given to Conerly by Maurice I. Lewis, indicted in January on football gambling charges were to cover personal loans and had no connection with gambling.

The investigation was conducted in Clarksdale, Miss., Conerly's home, and in Memphis, by Jim Hamilton, chief investigator for the league. The statement was issued by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The statement said it is "most unfortunate complete information was not reported when Conerly's name appeared in public print last Friday."

Retired In 1961

Conerly retired from football following the 1961 season, after 14 years as the quarterback of the Giants. He was a college player at Mississippi.

The report concerning the cancelled checks written by Conerly and found in Lewis' financial records appeared Friday in a copyright story by the Memphis Press-Scimitar. Rozelle sent Hamilton to Conerly's home in Clarksdale to investigate last weekend. Meanwhile, Conerly insisted to the Memphis Commercial-Appeal that his financial records would prove the checks were for repayment of loans.

Widely Publicized

Rozelle said he was making the statement to make known all the pertinent facts concerning Conerly, "who has been the subject of nationwide publicity during the last five days."

He pointed out the NFL has no jurisdiction over former employes such as Conerly.

"It does, however, have strong interest in such publicity because of the possible inferences drawn concerning a player who was a standout performer in the league for 14 years," the statement said.

The statement said the NFL office was advised on Thursday, Sept. 19, by a Memphis newspaperman of canceled checks payable to Conerly that were written by Lewis.

The NFL said its investigation showed that on May 10, 1961, Conerly withdrew $3,000 from his personal banking account in Clarksdale and gave it to Lewis as a loan. In June and October, 1962, Lewis made partial repayment of the loan by writing checks for $475 and $600 to Conerly, the statement said.

Sold Car For Conerly

Lewis also sold a car in Memphis for Conerly in 1961, when the player was in New York, and deposited the $3,500 proceeds to Conerly's account by personal check dated Nov. 26, 1961, the statement said.

Two other financial transactions in May and June of 1962 involved loans by Conerly to aid Lewis in meeting short term business obligations for his paving company, the statement said.

In both cases, Conerly gave Lewis a check and deposited one in repayment in a day or two, the statement said.

The NFL said Conerly emphatically said he knew Lewis only as a sports fan with business interests in real estate and asphalt paving.

It added that the NFL had obtained statements from 15 prominent persons in the Memphis-Clarksdale area. All of the individuals said they had never heard of Lewis having an interest in anything other than normal business activities until his indictment, the statement said.

Checks Totaled $9,575

The financial transactions publicized show Lewis' checks to Conerly total $9,575, with Lewis still owing Conerly $1,925. The former football star said late last week that he is certain that Lewis will repay that sum.

Giants Trade Guglielmi To Forty Niners

Struck Out As Pinch Hitter For Y. A. Tittle

By JOHN GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ralph Guglielmi, ex-Notre Dame star who struck out as a pinch-hitter for injured quarterback Y. A. Tittle on Sunday, was traded by the New York Giants Tuesday to the San Francisco Forty Niners for defensive halfback Bob Dove.

The Giants, still smarting from their 31-0 beating by the Pittsburgh Steelers in which Guglielmi failed to "move" the New York attack, also gave the Forty-Niners a future draft pick.

To Promote Griffing

There was immediate speculation the Giants would seek another quarterback in another deal to sub for Tittle, but coach Allie Sherman quelched that by indicating he plans to promote rookie Glynn Griffing, former Mississippi star now the No. 3 quarterback, to No. 2.

"We feel Griffing merited a chance to be No. 2," said Sherman. "And with Allan Webb injured (bad left knee), we needed another defensive halfback."

A Giant official explained New York's need for Dove, a former Colorado University star, this way: In addition to being No. 3 quarterback, Griffing also is the No. 6 defensive halfback. But he could not become the No. 2 quarterback and at the same time replace Webb as the No. 5 defensive halfback.

Guglielmi, 29, was thrust into a tough spot Sunday when Tittle was unable to play against the Steelers because of bruised ribs.

Dismal Performance

It was the first chance the dark-haired quarterback had to start for the Giants but it turned into a dismal performance. He completed only five of 15 passes for a total of 89 yards and had two passes intercepted. He was relieved late in the game by Griffing, who completed only three of 11 for 102 yards and also had two intercepted.

Guglielmi played four seasons for the Washington Redskins and one for the St. Louis Cardinals before coming to the Giants just before the 1962 season in a trade for halfback Billy Triplett and a draft choice. With Tittle having a brilliant season in '62 as he pitched the Giants to the Eastern Division title, Guglielmi was seldom used.

Dodgers Clinch Pennant As Chicago Defeats St. Louis, 6-3

Wobbly Cards Suffer Sixth Straight Loss

Cubs Rally In 8th For 3 Runs To Win, McDaniel Is Victor

By ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Cubs scored three runs in the eighth inning Tuesday to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, and clinch the National League pennant for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

It was the sixth straight defeat for the stumbling second - place Cardinals and wiped out their last chance to catch the Dodgers, who thus qualified to meet the American League champion New York Yankees in the World Series opening in New York on Oct. 2.

With only four games left to play, the Cards had 91 victories. The Dodgers, going into Tuesday night's game against the New York Mets, had 96.

The Cardinals were wobbly at the end of their pennant quest, like a fighter about to be knocked out. They made three errors, giving the Cubs one unearned run, and pitcher Bob Gibson made two wild pitches in the decisive eighth inning to put the leading runs in scoring position for Chicago.

Rallied In Seventh

After trailing 3-0 early in the game, the Cardinals had kept their faint hopes alive by rallying for three runs in the seventh inning to tie the score.

But a rookie, Jim Stewart, started the Redbirds' downfall in the last half of the eighth inning when he opened with a single and advanced to second on one of Gibson's wild pitches. Gibson then walked Lou Brock and served up his second wild pitch, moving Stewart to third and Brock to second.

For a moment Gibson stood firm on the brink of disaster. He retired Billy Williams, who had homered earlier, on a fly ball and got two strikes on Ron Santo.

But his next three pitches were balls and then Santo, after fouling four times with the count 3-and-2, delivered the fatal blow to the pennant race — a ringing single to left that scored both runners and put the Cubs ahead, 5-3. Santo later scored the final run on Ellis Burton's single to right.

Glen Hobbie and Lindy McDaniel combined on the mound to stifle the St. Louis attack with five hits, but the Cards bunched three of these in the seventh for all of their runs and might have had enough to win except for their misplays.

Groat Was Walked

Dick Groat opened the seventh with a walk and reached third on Stan Musial's single to left. Gary Kolb ran for Musial and both scored on Ken Boyer's triple off the center field fence. Boyer tallied the tying run on George Altman's single.

But McDaniel took over thereafter for Hobbie. While he walked Groat in the eighth and Mike Shannon singled in the ninth, neither runner could reach second as the Cardinals' pennant chances evaporated.

Hobbie, who retired the first nine men to face him, helped the Cubs to their first run with a third inning sacrifice after Merrit Ranew had singled. Stewart then drove in Ranew with grounder which took a bad hop past first baseman Bill White and rolled to the right field grass for a single.

The other Cub runs came when Lou Brock was safe on Groat's error before Billy Williams hit his 24th homer.

McDaniel, although he worked only two frames, won his 13th decision and Gibson, who was replaced by Ron Taylor for the final two outs, took his ninth defeat.

Dodgers Didn't Back Into Flag, Drysdale Says

Refers To Five In Row Over Cards And Bucs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dodger players and brass voiced joy Tuesday at clinching the National League pennant and vowed to play as hard as ever for the remainder of the season.

"It's wonderful," Manager Walter Alston told a well-wisher by telephone from his home.

He added: "I thought the Cardinals would win today and we'd win tonight."

The Cardinals' 6-3 loss to the Cubs at Chicago gave the Dodgers the National League championship.

Celebrate? "We got a ball game tonight," Alston said. "I can't think of a better way to celebrate."

Don Drysdale, one of the club's crack pitchers, commented at his home:

"Anybody who says we backed into the pennant missed our five games last week."

He referred to the Dodgers' three-game sweep of a crucial series with St. Louis, followed by two wins over Pittsburgh.

Asked if he would ease up in his pitching assignment against the New York Mets Tuesday night Drysdale answered, "Oh no, we'll still try to win. I think everybody on the ball club will do the same thing."

There was little visible joy around sprawling Los Angeles as the news came during working hours, and there was no regular broadcast coverage of the Cards-Cubs contest.

The Dodger stadium line has been jammed for days with calls from would-be purchasers of tickets for the World Series between the Dodgers and New York Yankees.

The Dodgers said there is a possibility of a public ticket sale, and if so the time and place will be announced Sept. 30.

Charley Conerly Is Cleared Of Gambling Charges By NFL

Checks He Received From Lewis Covered His Personal Loans

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League said Tuesday its investigations had shown that financial transactions between former New York Giants quarterback Charley Conerly and a Memphis man accused of gambling were blameless.

"Conerly is and always has been a credit to the National Football League," the NFL said in a statement.

Checks Covered Loans

The NFL statement said its investigations showed that checks given to Conerly by Maurice I. Lewis, indicted in January on football gambling charges were to cover personal loans and had no connection with gambling.

The investigation was conducted in Clarksdale, Miss., Conerly's home, and in Memphis, by Jim Hamilton, chief investigator for the league. The statement was issued by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The statement said it is "most unfortunate complete information was not reported when Conerly's name appeared in public print last Friday."

Retired In 1961

Conerly retired from football following the 1961 season, after 14 years as the quarterback of the Giants. He was a college player at Mississippi.

The report concerning the cancelled checks written by Conerly and found in Lewis' financial records appeared Friday in a copyright story by the Memphis Press-Scimitar. Rozelle sent Hamilton to Conerly's home in Clarksdale to investigate last weekend. Meanwhile, Conerly insisted to the Memphis Commercial-Appeal that his financial records would prove the checks were for repayment of loans.

Widely Publicized

Rozelle said he was making the statement to make known all the pertinent facts concerning Conerly, "who has been the subject of nationwide publicity during the last five days."

He pointed out the NFL has no jurisdiction over former employes such as Conerly.

"It does, however, have strong interest in such publicity because of the possible inferences drawn concerning a player who was a standout performer in the league for 14 years," the statement said.

The statement said the NFL office was advised on Thursday, Sept. 19, by a Memphis newspaperman of canceled checks payable to Conerly that were written by Lewis.

The NFL said its investigation showed that on May 10, 1961, Conerly withdrew $3,000 from his personal banking account in Clarksdale and gave it to Lewis as a loan. In June and October, 1962, Lewis made partial repayment of the loan by writing checks for $475 and $600 to Conerly, the statement said.

Sold Car For Conerly

Lewis also sold a car in Memphis for Conerly in 1961, when the player was in New York, and deposited the $3,500 proceeds to Conerly's account by personal check dated Nov. 26, 1961, the statement said.

Two other financial transactions in May and June of 1962 involved loans by Conerly to aid Lewis in meeting short term business obligations for his paving company, the statement said.

In both cases, Conerly gave Lewis a check and deposited one in repayment in a day or two, the statement said.

The NFL said Conerly emphatically said he knew Lewis only as a sports fan with business interests in real estate and asphalt paving.

It added that the NFL had obtained statements from 15 prominent persons in the Memphis-Clarksdale area. All of the individuals said they had never heard of Lewis having an interest in anything other than normal business activities until his indictment, the statement said.

Checks Totaled $9,575

The financial transactions publicized show Lewis' checks to Conerly total $9,575, with Lewis still owing Conerly $1,925. The former football star said late last week that he is certain that Lewis will repay that sum.

Giants Trade Guglielmi To Forty Niners

Struck Out As Pinch Hitter For Y. A. Tittle

By JOHN GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ralph Guglielmi, ex-Notre Dame star who struck out as a pinch-hitter for injured quarterback Y. A. Tittle on Sunday, was traded by the New York Giants Tuesday to the San Francisco Forty Niners for defensive halfback Bob Dove.

The Giants, still smarting from their 31-0 beating by the Pittsburgh Steelers in which Guglielmi failed to "move" the New York attack, also gave the Forty-Niners a future draft pick.

To Promote Griffing

There was immediate speculation the Giants would seek another quarterback in another deal to sub for Tittle, but coach Allie Sherman quelched that by indicating he plans to promote rookie Glynn Griffing, former Mississippi star now the No. 3 quarterback, to No. 2.

"We feel Griffing merited a chance to be No. 2," said Sherman. "And with Allan Webb injured (bad left knee), we needed another defensive halfback."

A Giant official explained New York's need for Dove, a former Colorado University star, this way: In addition to being No. 3 quarterback, Griffing also is the No. 6 defensive halfback. But he could not become the No. 2 quarterback and at the same time replace Webb as the No. 5 defensive halfback.

Guglielmi, 29, was thrust into a tough spot Sunday when Tittle was unable to play against the Steelers because of bruised ribs.

Dismal Performance

It was the first chance the dark-haired quarterback had to start for the Giants but it turned into a dismal performance. He completed only five of 15 passes for a total of 89 yards and had two passes intercepted. He was relieved late in the game by Griffing, who completed only three of 11 for 102 yards and also had two intercepted.

Guglielmi played four seasons for the Washington Redskins and one for the St. Louis Cardinals before coming to the Giants just before the 1962 season in a trade for halfback Billy Trinlett and a draft choice. With Tittle having a brilliant season in '62 as he pitched the Giants to the Eastern Division title, Guglielmi was seldom used.

Bunning Wins On Homer, 1-0

Don Wert's Belt Defeats Osteen

DETROIT (UPI)—Don Wert hit a fifth inning homer Tuesday to break up a pitching duel between Washington's Claude Osteen and Detroit's Jim Bunning and give the Tigers a 1-0 victory over the Senators.

Wert's long drive into the first row in the left field upper deck came with one out in the fifth after Osteen had retired the first 13 men in a row. The Tigers managed only two other hits off Osteen, a sixth inning single by Bunning and a seventh inning single by Rocky Colavito, as they sent Osteen down to his 14th loss against eight wins.

Bunning was in and out of trouble, giving up eight hits, including two in the first and two in the fifth. But he struck out eight, including the side in the fifth, to pitch his way out of trouble. The win gave Bunning a record of 12-13.

Fight In November

Promoter Bill King announced that actually Clay would face either Chuvalo or DeJohn in a 10-rounder at Louisville's Convention Center either Nov. 5, if a contract is signed for closed circuit television, or Nov. 8, if it is spotted on the Friday night television network (ABC) fight show.

Also present at the press conference were Chuvalo and DeJohn, and Gordon Davidson, legal adviser for the group of 11 Louisville professional and businessmen who control Clay's contract.

Clay's explanation for his change of heart about fighting again this year was, "I felt I owed it to the people of Louisville, my home town, to give them some good action. People here are hungry for good action."

The bombastic No. 1 challenger for Sonny Liston's heavyweight crown left no doubt he was doing all concerned a big favor, if not actually degrading himself, by getting into a ring with the Chuvalo-DeJohn winner.

Must Fight Bums

But, he explained, "until Liston is willing to meet my terms, I'll have to continue fighting bums like these."

"I want to be fair to both of them," Clay declared with his customary tact, "so I'll predict that either one will fall in five."

He threatened to change the forecast on Chuvalo, however, when the Toronto heavyweight cut loose a wisecrack of his own.

Feeling Clay's biceps for a publicity photograph, Chuvalo cracked "You must be a welterweight."

Cassius glared at the upstart Canadian and warned, "I may have to lower the prediction on you."

Yankees Clout Belinsky, Ford Bags 24th Win

Howard Socks Two Triples In 8-1 Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whitey Ford, who will pitch the World Series opener, demonstrated he's as ready as he'll ever be by firing seven scoreless innings for his 24th victory Tuesday night while leading the New York Yankees to an 8-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels.

Ford struck out nine, did not walk a batter and scattered six singles during the seven innings he worked to lower his earned run average to 2.75 and register his seventh straight victory.

Ralph Terry relieved Ford in the eighth and gave up the Angels' only run in the ninth on Leon Wagner's 26th home run of the year.

All eight Yankee regulars, including Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, were in the starting lineup for the first time since June 1 and for only the ninth time during the entire season. Maris, back in right field after missing 10 games because of a sore back, had a double and a walk in three at-bats.

The Yankees clinched the contest in the first inning when they hammered Bo Belinsky for four runs. Elston Howard's triple with the bases full accounted for three tallies and Howard scored on Joe Pepitone's infield single.

Howard collected his second triple of the game off reliever Julian Navarro in the sixth when th Yankees increased their lead to 6-0 and Hector Lopez singled home two more runs in the seventh.

Red Sox Whip Athletics, 5-1

Morehead Notches 10th Win Of Year

BOSTON (UPI)— Rookie Dave Morehead pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th victory Tuesday as the Boston Red Sox took a 5-1 decision from the Kansas City Athletics.

Morehead, walking two and striking out 11, lost his shutout bid on two singles and a double play grounder in the eighth inning.

Boston infielder Felix Mantilla homered on loser Diego Segui's second pitch of the game and the Red Sox won on three unearned runs in the seventh. Singles by Russ Nixon and Morehead, an error, fielder's choice and Dick Stuart's two-run double produced the scores. Ed Bressoud added a solo homer, his 19th, in the eighth.

Bunning Wins On Homer, 1-0

Don Wert's Belt Defeats Osteen

DETROIT (UPI)—Don Wert hit a fifth inning homer Tuesday to break up a pitching duel between Washington's Claude Osteen and Detroit's Jim Bunning and give the Tigers a 1-0 victory over the Senators.

Wert's long drive into the first row in the left field upper deck came with one out in the fifth after Osteen had retired the first 13 men in a row. The Tigers managed only two other hits off Osteen, a sixth inning single by Bunning and a seventh inning single by Rocky Colavito, as they sent Osteen down to his 14th loss against eight wins.

Bunning was in and out of trouble, giving up eight hits, including two in the first and two in the fifth. But he struck out eight, including the side in the fifth, to pitch his way out of trouble. The win gave Bunning a record of 12-13.

Cassius Clay Agrees To Fight DeJohn-Chuvalo Bout Winner

To Continue Fighting "Bums" Until Liston Meets His Terms

By ROBERT WESTON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Heavyweight challenger Cassius Clay, reversing a previous decision to fight no more this year, agreed Tuesday to fight the winner of the bout between Mike DeJohn and George Chuvalo, who meet here next Friday night.

In fact, the "Louisville Lip," said, if the Chuvalo - DeJohn go should happen to end in a draw, he will be glad to fight both of them the same night.

Fight In November

Promoter Bill King announced that actually Clay would face either Chuvalo or DeJohn in a 10-rounder at Louisville's Convention Center either Nov. 5, if a contract is signed for closed circuit television, or Nov. 8, if it is spotted on the Friday night television network (ABC) fight show.

Also present at the press conference were Chuvalo and DeJohn, and Gordon Davidson, legal adviser for the group of 11 Louisville professional and businessmen who control Clay's contract.

Clay's explanation for his change of heart about fighting again this year was, "I felt I owed it to the people of Louisville, my home town, to give them some good action. People here are hungry for good action."

The bombastic No. 1 challenger for Sonny Liston's heavyweight crown left no doubt he was doing all concerned a big favor, if not actually degrading himself, by getting into a ring with the Chuvalo-DeJohn winner.

Must Fight Bums

But, he explained, "until Liston is willing to meet my terms, I'll have to continue fighting bums like these."

"I want to be fair to both of them," Clay declared with his customary tact, "so I'll predict that either one will fall in five."

He threatened to change the forecast on Chuvalo, however, when the Toronto heavyweight cut loose a wisecrack of his own.

Feeling Clay's biceps for a publicity photograph, Chuvalo cracked "You must be a welterweight."

Cassius glared at the upstart Canadian and warned, "I may have to lower the prediction on you."

Yankees Clout Belinsky, Ford Bags 24th Win

Howard Socks Two Triples In 8-1 Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whitey Ford, who will pitch the World Series opener, demonstrated he's as ready as he'll ever be by firing seven scoreless innings for his 24th victory Tuesday night while leading the New York Yankees to an 8-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels.

Ford struck out nine, did not walk a batter and scattered six singles during the seven innings he worked to lower his earned run average to 2.75 and register his seventh straight victory.

Ralph Terry relieved Ford in the eighth and gave up the Angels' only run in the ninth on Leon Wagner's 26th home run of the year.

All eight Yankee regulars, including Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, were in the starting lineup for the first time since June 1 and for only the ninth time during the entire season. Maris, back in right field after missing 10 games because of a sore back, had a double and a walk in three at-bats.

The Yankees clinched the contest in the first inning when they hammered Bo Belinsky for four runs. Elston Howard's triple with the bases full accounted for three tallies and Howard scored on Joe Pepitone's infield single.

Howard collected his second triple of the game off reliever Julian Navarro in the sixth when th Yankees increased their lead to 6-0 and Hector Lopez singled home two more runs in the seventh.

Red Sox Whip Athletics, 5-1

Morehead Notches 10th Win Of Year

BOSTON (UPI)— Rookie Dave Morehead pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th victory Tuesday as the Boston Red Sox took a 5-1 decision from the Kansas City Athletics.

Morehead, walking two and striking out 11, lost his shutout bid on two singles and a double play grounder in the eighth inning.

Boston infielder Felix Mantilla homered on loser Diego Segui's second pitch of the game and the Red Sox won on three unearned runs in the seventh. Singles by Russ Nixon and Morehead, an error, fielder's choice and Dick Stuart's two-run double produced the scores. Ed Bressoud added a solo homer, his 19th, in the eighth.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the people of Wellersburg and the surrounding communities, for their kindness and help. Words cannot express how much we appreciate everything that has been done, and we are deeply grateful to everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Witt & Family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Cloice E. Filer who passed away 2 years ago today Sept. 25th 1961.

More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed:
But they little know what sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.

Sadly missed by his family

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the people of Wellersburg and the surrounding communities, for their kindness and help. Words cannot express how much we appreciate everything that has been done, and we are deeply grateful to everyone.
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Witt & Family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Cloice E. Filer who passed away 2 years ago today Sept. 25th 1961.
More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know what sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.

Fishing Tackle Taken From Garage

Two theft cases reported Sunday are being investigated by the Detective Bureau.

Robert Rinehart, 610 Memorial Avenue, reported that someone entered the garage of his home through an unlocked door and stole a box and fishing tackle valued at about $150.

The box was found later in the 600 block of Greenway Avenue. Detective Harry Iser was told two boys, about 12, were seen running from the garage about 8:30 p. m. with an object which might have been the tackle box.

The Dutch Kitchen, 20 South Lee Street, reported about $2 in sales tax money was taken from beside the cash register. The janitor, Detective Iser was told, found a rear window leading to the kitchen broken.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Ed Begley is making his song and dance debut at an age when most men would be thinking of less active pursuits.

Ed is 63, a time of life when a fellow's energy should be conserved, an age often known for its inactivity. Such talk of age doesn't phase Begley who is to be found these days dancing across the stages at Metro Goldwyn Mayer studio in the film version of "Unsinkable Molly Brown."

When it comes to dancing, newcomer Ed doesn't take a back seat to anybody, not even Debbie Reynolds, a hoofer of long standing who co-stars with him in the movie. Ed plays her boozing, singing and dancing father.

"It isn't difficult for me," said Ed. "I enjoy ballroom dancing and I've got a good sense of rhythm. And my Uncle Martin was a step dancer who travelled around Ireland with a blind piper giving exhibitions. I can do a beautiful Irish jig."

That takes care of Ed's dancing. How about singing?

Recalling a friend's comments about his vocal talents, Begley said, "The man told me, 'Ed, I cannot understand why the Metropolitan Opera hasn't signed you. You're the only man I ever met who can change key five times in one bar of music.' My dancing is better."

It's rare that Begley is cast in something which doesn't require him to be a fiend. He won his Academy Award this year for playing a political boss in "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Usually when a producer had a character he wanted to earn the hatred of movie fans, Begley was cast in the part. Nobody in show business, unless it's David Susskind, can antagonize more people than Ed Begley.

Even so, Ed wanted a change of image, some parts in which he could be depicted as a nice chap.

"I leaped at the chance to do this 'Molly Brown' picture," said Begley, seeming to jump with the words. "I wanted to get away from the horrible creatures I've been playing. Not that I wasn't grateful for the parts, an actor has to work. But it's like eating creampuffs, eat a dozen and you get sick."

Ed has campaigned for a long time to get rid of his hateful screen image. His friends have been urging him along.

"Everybody has been saying to me for years, when I'd cut up at parties, 'Ed you should do a musical,'" the actor admitted. "But producers would only say, 'What do you mean, musicals, Begley plays villains, a guy with a smile who cuts your heart out.'

"Now since I got the Academy Award producers will listen to me. They might not always do what I ask but they listen. Before they used to say, 'Actors don't know what roles they can do best.'"

Ed's new image as a song and dance man has another advantage. His two children can now watch him perform. In the past, Begley was reluctant to let them watch his evil portrayals.

"Those parts are not at all like me," he insists. "I'm a happy man and that's how my children know me."

Fishing Tackle Taken From Garage

Two theft cases reported Sunday are being investigated by the Detective Bureau.

Robert Rinehart, 610 Memorial Avenue, reported that someone entered the garage of his home through an unlocked door and stole a box and fishing tackle valued at about $150.

The box was found later in the 600 block of Greenway Avenue. Detective Harry Iser was told two boys, about 12, were seen running from the garage about 8:30 p. m. with an object which might have been the tackle box.

The Dutch Kitchen, 20 South Lee Street, reported about $2 in sales tax money was taken from beside the cash register. The janitor, Detective Iser was told, found a rear window leading to the kitchen broken.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Ed Begley is making his song and dance debut at an age when most men would be thinking of less active pursuits.

Ed is 63, a time of life when a fellow's energy should be conserved, an age often known for its inactivity. Such talk of age doesn't phase Begley who is to be found these days dancing across the stages at Metro Goldwyn Mayer studio in the film version of "Unsinkable Molly Brown."

When it comes to dancing, newcomer Ed doesn't take a back seat to anybody, not even Debbie Reynolds, a hoofer of long standing who co-stars with him in the movie. Ed plays her boozing, singing and dancing father.

"It isn't difficult for me," said Ed. "I enjoy ballroom dancing and I've got a good sense of rhythm. And my Uncle Martin was a step dancer who travelled around Ireland with a blind piper giving exhibitions. I can do a beautiful Irish jig."

That takes care of Ed's dancing. How about singing?

Recalling a friend's comments about his vocal talents, Begley said, "The man told me, 'Ed, I cannot understand why the Metropolitan Opera hasn't signed you. You're the only man I ever met who can change key five times in one bar of music.' My dancing is better."

It's rare that Begley is cast in something which doesn't require him to be a fiend. He won his Academy Award this year for playing a political boss in "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Usually when a producer had a character he wanted to earn the hatred of movie fans, Begley was cast in the part. Nobody in show business, unless it's David Susskind, can antagonize more people than Ed Begley.

Even so, Ed wanted a change of image, some parts in which he could be depicted as a nice chap.

"I leaped at the chance to do this 'Molly Brown' picture," said Begley, seeming to jump with the words. "I wanted to get away from the horrible creatures I've been playing. Not that I wasn't grateful for the parts, an actor has to work. But it's like eating creampuffs, eat a dozen and you get sick."

Ed has campaigned for a long time to get rid of his hateful screen image. His friends have been urging him along.

"Everybody has been saying to me for years, when I'd cut up at parties, 'Ed you should do a musical,'" the actor admitted. "But producers would only say, 'What do you mean, musicals, Begley plays villains, a guy with a smile who cuts your heart out.'

"Now since I got the Academy Award producers will listen to me. They might not always do what I ask but they listen. Before they used to say, 'Actors don't know what roles they can do best.'"

Ed's new image as a song and dance man has another advantage. His two children can now watch him perform. In the past, Begley was reluctant to let them watch his evil portrayals.

"Those parts are not at all like me," he insists. "I'm a happy man and that's how my children know me."

City Progress Termed Aim Of Urban Renewal

McMullen Briefs Advisory Group

The ultimate aim of this city's urban renewal program is to move Cumberland ahead, Hugh A. McMullen, city solicitor, said last night in an address before the Mayor's Citizens' Advisory Committee to the agency.

And he advised the committee, which is a bridge between citizens and the urban renewal agency, that the renewal program here will take time and hard work.

The most important thing to remember about urban renewal, he said, is that it desires to rehabilitate particular areas and produce a better city, and its ultimate goal is to encourage and assist the development of private enterprise in Cumberland.

"This is not a one-agency task—it is a gigantic undertaking on the part of all to improve Cumberland with private enterprise and for the enjoyment of all its citizens," he said.

Sound Investment

He called urban renewal a sound business investment for Cumberland.

The Mayor and Council has the right, he said, to issue general obligation or revenue bonds to assist in the payment of urban renewal costs.

The Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency was created by the adoption by the Mayor and Council of Ordinance 2312.

The agency has full powers except the power to initiate an urban renewal project or to issue general obligation bonds, or to appropriate funds or levy taxes and assessments — powers retained by the Mayor and Council.

Must Relocate

An urban renewal project, he said, is an undertaking by Cumberland in an urban renewal area for the elimination of or prevention or spread of slum and blighted areas.

Stressing that there will be no "steam roller" effects, he said a project may involve clearing out of a completely slum or underdeveloped area, or a rehabilitation and conservation of a slum or blighted area.

A project begins, he added, when the Mayor and Council passes a resolution which finds that a slum or blighted area actually exists and defines its area.

Before the plan can be placed in operation, he stressed, the Cumberland Renewal Agency must relocate any displaced persons from the area into decent, safe and sanitary accommodations and there must be no undue hardship caused any family in the process.

The Urban Renewal program was one of several subjects he discussed, including the process of issuing bonds, an explanation of home rule legislation, and the city's parks and playground program.

Harry Kauffman, chairman, presided at the session held in the Council Chamber in City Hall.

Guests included Mayor Earl D. Chaney, William F. DeMare, executive director of the local Urban Renewal Agency, and Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Crews Working To Repair Big Water Main

Water Department crews were working through the night to repair a break in a 30-inch water main on Harrison Street on the Park Street side of the B & O Railroad tracks.

The break was discovered shortly after 7:30 p. m., and emergency crews were dispatched to the scene.

City police aided Street Department workers in barricading the area from George Street to past the broken line.

The break was in a 30-inch line fed from a 36-inch transmission line at Pine Avenue.

Crews were able to cut off the flow of water and keep damage to a minimum.

A department spokesman said at 10:30 p. m. he had no estimate of when the line would be repaired but that crews "will stay with it."

Police Probing Pa. Shooting

Pennsylvania State Police are continuing an investigation of a shooting incident yesterday morning in which a 54-year-old Bedford area man was hospitalized.

Newton Hutzel was reported in "fair" condition last night at Bedford County Memorial Hospital. Police said the man sustained a serious wound of the left arm.

The shooting occurred about 7:30 a. m. yesterday at the home of James Price, also of RD 2, Bedford, police reported.

Men Of LaSalle To Meet Thursday

The Men of LaSalle will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday on the first floor of the Knights of Columbus Home, North Mechanic Street.

Jack Painter, president, urged that all members attend, as important business will be discussed.

High Holy Days End Saturday

The Jewish High Holy Days which began last Wednesday will conclude with services at B'er Chayim Temple on Friday beginning at 8 p. m. and a full day of prayer the following day until sundown.

This is the Day of Atonement and is the most solemn day of the Jewish Calendar which marks the beginning of the year 5724.

Services will be conducted by Rabbi Solomon Greenberg of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati. Saturday's services will include a special children's service beginning at 1:30 p. m., an afternoon service an hour later; special memorial service at 3:30 p. m. and the concluding services at 4:30 p. m.

An augmented choir under the direction of Mrs. John Zornick will sing traditional music including the ancient hymn, "Kol Nidre," one of the world's oldest known hymns which means "all vows."

At the conclusion of the services Saturday, the B'er Chayim sisterhood will serve a "break-fast" meal in the vestry rooms.

Crews Expedite Renovation Job On City Dams

Work on the rehabilitation of the Lake Gordon and Lake Koon dams is progressing at a fast pace.

Crews of the Air Placement Company, of Grafton, W. Va., moved in shotcrete equipment Monday morning and by that afternoon had crews busy restoring the surface to original contours.

Yesterday, two crews were busy shooting on the concrete mix, one crew was putting up wire reinforcing mesh and another was drilling to locate a leak at the base of the dam.

Another shotcrete machine will be placed in operation this week, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light was told.

The firm began work August 19 on the $68,000 contract and have been busy since then sandblasting weathered sections of the face of the reservoirs and installing anchors to hold wire mesh reinforcing in place.

Surfaces of the dams are being restored by the shotcrete equipment which is used to blow on a mixture of cement, sand and water.

The mix is applied under pressure as workers direct the nozzle of the "gun" back and forth until the concrete is built up to the required thickness.

The face of both dams will be restored to the original lines during the work.

The work also calls for locating and stopping, by pressure grouting, a leak in Lake Gordon on the side opposite the gate house.

Lease Held For Jury

William Daniel Robert Lease, 33, of 343 National Highway, LaVale, yesterday was ordered held under $2,500 bond for action of the October term of the Allegany County grand jury on a charge of auto theft.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt conducted the preliminary hearing and ordered Lease committed to the County Jail in default of bond.

Lease was charged with taking a car owned by Thomas McHugh, 106 Potomac Street, on July 8. He was returned here Monday from Bedford, Pa., by Tfc. Willis E. Foreman of the State Police.

Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason, who presented the state's case yesterday, said Lease has requested an immediate trial. Mr. Mason said Lease also faces a charge of non-support.

Killing Frost Hits Section; Cool Again Today

The cool spell, which moved into the area earlier in the week and brought with it a killing frost in Garrett County and parts of Allegany County, is expected to continue for another day or so.

Killing frost was reported in Garrett County on Monday and Tuesday and some frost damage was reported in the low spots in Allengany County yesterday.

The lowest reading in the area was at Thomas, W. Va., where 22 degrees was reported. Other low readings were Town Hill, 24; Oakland, 28; LaVale, 30, and Cumberland, 37.

The forecast for today calls for continued sunny and cool weather with temperatures in the 60s. Tomorrow the prediction is for partly cloudy and warmer weather.

Yesterday, the mercury reached 68 degrees in downtown Cumberland, but began to drop sharply after the sun set.

Ladies Night Slated By Local Optimists

Ladies night will be marked this evening during the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Cumberland Optimist Club which will begin at 6:15 at Central YMCA. A program will be presented.

Unseasonal Lily

This regal lily is providing unseasonal beauty in the yard of Mrs. Charles F. Fradiska, 431 Chestnut Street. Mrs. Fradiska said she received the lily as an Easter gift and planted it in her yard when warm weather came. About eight weeks ago the lily began growing once again and reached its present height. It has three large blooms.

Della Predicts JFK Will Lose In Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former president of the Maryland Senate predicted Tuesday that President Kennedy and any candidate who runs with his backing in Maryland next year will be defeated.

George W. Della, who was defeated last year in his bid for a sixth term in the State Senate from Baltimore's 6th District, expressed this view in forecasting a gloomy future for his party.

"Kennedy can't win Maryland in the general election," he said. "Goldwater could carry the state if he runs."

The national trend, Della said, is to the Republican Party. "The shift is to the right. And anyone who runs with Kennedy in Maryland will lose."

Della was thinking about a possible Kennedy-Tydings ticket in Maryland.

Joseph D. Tydings, Maryland's U.S. attorney and the son of the late U.S. Sen. Millard E. Tydings, is a close friend of the President and U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, and apparently has White House support for U.S. Senate. The President recently visited Tydings' home in Harford County.

"Even if Tydings got the party nomination," Della said, "it wouldn't do him any good. He'd lose in the general. Joe knows he can't win."

The Democrats must have an independent thinker if they are to take a Maryland Senate seat from the Republicans, Della said. The seat now held by Republican J. Glenn Beall will be filled in next year's election.

Della indicated that he may be the independent thinker the Democrats need.

"I've been thinking about running," he said. "I've been approached by labor and by a number of Baltimore County people."

He said he had not discussed with Gov. Tawes the possibility of seeking the Senate nomination in the Democratic primary.

Stop Signs Placed On Local Street

Two additional stop signs have been placed at local intersections as a safety measure, said Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan.

He said the signs have been placed at the intersection of Prospect Square and Washington Street on West Side and at Shawnee Avenue and Franklin Street in North End.

Board Approves Coal Heat For New School

Decision Involves South End Project

When the new South End Junior High School is constructed it will be heated with coal.

That decision was made yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Education after receiving a recommendation to that effect from William Van Lonkhuyzen, architect with the Silver Spring firm of Johannes and Murray, which is designing the new building to be constructed several blocks from Fort Hill High School.

Mr. Van Lunkhuyzen wrote that Montgomery County had tried electric heat in one eight-room school and officials are still experimenting with controls as the second heating season opens.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster explained to the board some of the plans involving outdoor athletic facilities near the new North End Junior High School. The George Construction Company was awarded the contract August 20 to build this school on a low bid of $1,767,000.

Stitcher Field Stays

Mr. Webster said Stitcher Field, the present North End baseball diamond, will be maintained and improved south of the new school. The tennis courts, which are being removed to make room for the school, will be rebuilt near the baseball diamond. A paved play area will be developed near the school's gymnasium.

The school is being built fairly close to Holland Street to avoid the hillside at the edge of the property. The corner of the building still will be 52 feet from Holland Street.

After yesterday's session, the board members drove to North End to inspect the school site.

Approved was the contract of a new teacher at Flintstone Elementary School, Mrs. Patricia Eberhard, 198 East Main Street, Frostburg. Mrs. Eberhard, who had three years of teaching experience in Michigan, was hired just before the school year started early in September.

Mr. Webster informed the board that Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, who plans to retire at the close of this year, wants to meet with all of the school boards around the state before retiring.

The Allegany County board decided to leave details of arrangements to the county superintendent.

Letters Of Thanks

Four letters of thanks were read into the record by Mr. Webster. Letters from the LaVale PTA, East Side PTA and Paul M. Arbogast, principal of Johnson Heights School, expressed appreciation for summer improvements made at all three schools.

Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, principal of Mt. Savage School, aimed his letter at Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, county supervisor of cafeterias. He commended her for featuring menus from different sections in the cafeterias and was particularly pleased that the first featured New England recipes. Mr. Hodgdon is a native of Maine.

All five board members, J. Goodloe Jackson, T. Donald Shires, Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. George M. Young and Mrs. May B. Bolt, attended yesterday's session as did the board's attorney, Robert MacDonald Bruce.

School Board Decides Against Advisory Group

The Allegany County Board of Education decided yesterday afternoon that there is no need now for the creation of a citizens advisory committee on education.

This action was taken after the board members received copies of a four-page report submitted by T. Donaid Shires, vice chairman of the board, on the experience of other Maryland counties with such committees.

Mrs. Richard Winer, a former member of the school board, made a motion at one of the meetings before her resignation for the creation of a citizens advisory committee on education. Eventually, the matter was referred to Mr. Shires for investigation.

He wrote to all 22 other Maryland counties and Baltimore City seeking information on their experiences with such committees.

Sixteen counties and Baltimore City responded and 10 of the counties reported they never had had such committees.

In some of those counties where committees had been formed they were organized for a specific purpose. For instance, Kent County on the Eastern Shore had used committees for such purposes as buildings, desegregation and teachers' salaries.

Several members of the Allegany County board said yesterday that such a committee might be advisable if some specific school need developed, but at this time they did not anticipate such need.

The school board here thought the comment of Willard L. Hawkins, Garrett County superintendent of schools, was pertinent.

"Such a committee could be helpful if it is propertly motivated and is comprised of people interested in better schools," he wrote. "There might be a danger in such a committee acting as a super-board and challenging every action of the Board of Education. This could lead to a very unpleasant situation."

Mr. Shires was thanked for his efforts in this study.

21 Companies To Take Part In B-E Day

Twenty-one business and industrial firms have agreed to participate in the annual Business Education Day activities October 23, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday.

Participating will be the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Blue Ribbon Baking Company, Celanese Fibers Company, C & P Telephone Company of Maryland, Columbia Gas of Maryland, Cumberland Brewing Company, Cumberland Lenders.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association, First-Second National Bank and Trust Company, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Liberty Trust Company, G. C. Murphy Company.

National Jet Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Potomac Edison Company, Queen City Brewing Company, Rosenbaum's, Sacred Heart Hospital, Sears Roebuck and Company, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the Western Maryland Railway.

Three of the firms, Blue Ribbon Baking, the Telephone Company and First Federal, will be participating in the program for the first time.

Taking part in the day's activities will be 695 teachers and administrators. Invitations were extended by the firm this week.

Robert C. Petersen, C of C manager, said that at last week's planning meeting the problem of finding parking space for 30 extra cars was solved when Coach System parking lots on Baltimore Street offered to provide free parking space for teachers who will be the guests of the hospital on B-E day.

Health Board To Meet

The City Health Board will meet Friday at 2 p. m. in the office of Mayor Earl D. Chaney in City Hall.

Better City Treatment Of Wastes Urged

Cumberland and 10 other communities on or near the North Branch of the Potomac River were urged yesterday to take immediate steps to provide better sewage treatment facilities.

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, meeting in Washington yesterday, adopted a resolution calling on the communities to help clean up the North Branch, and urging the state water control agencies of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia to "exert whatever resources are available to them" to correct conditions.

Carl J. Johnson, director of the commission, said the resolution noted that of the 114 sewered communities on the Potomac, 62 provide secondary waste treatment, 28 provide only primary treatment, and 21 provide no treatment at all.

At least 10 providing no treatment are on or near the North Branch and one of the two large communities among the 28 that provide only primary treatment also is on the North Branch. That is Cumberland. The only other large community among that 28 is Arlington, Va.

The 10 with no treatment are Ridgeley, Keyser, Piedmont, Frostburg, Midland, Barton, Lonaconing, LaVale, Cresaptown and Hyndman. Hyndman is under orders of the Pennsylvania Sanitary Water Board to treat its sewage.

The commission's resolution pointed out that substantial financial aid is available to communities for constructing sewage treatment plants, but that the condition of the North Branch waters remains "materially impaired" by untreated wastes.

In other action yesterday the commission elected Dr. Charles L. Wilbar Jr. as its director. Dr. Wilbar, as secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, has been an ex officio member of the ICPRB for several years. He succeeds Maryland State Sen. H. Winship Wheatley Jr., who has been chairman for the past two years.

Auto Thief Gets Year

Carl Junior Ruse, 27, of 216½ Knox Street, yesterday was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of auto larceny.

Magistrate Leslie J. Clark found Ruse guilty of two counts of auto theft and sentenced the local man to a year in jail on each charge. However, the magistrate ruled the sentences may run concurrently.

Ruse was charged with taking a car from Marshall Tewell, of the Knox Street Motors, on September 13, and with taking a car on September 19 owned by Paul Sullivan, 225 North Centre Street.

Ruse was arrested this week by Detective Capt. James E. Van and Detective Harry Iser, Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason represented the state at the hearing.

Hampshire Co. Jury To Rule On Boy's Fate

Murder Trial To End Today

A Hampshire County (W. Va.) Circuit Court jury of 10 men and two women is expected to decide the fate of a 14-year-old Hampshire County boy charged with murder today after the rival attorneys present their closing argument this morning in the Court House at Romney.

William H. Loy, attorney for the youngster from North River Mills, called the boy to the witness stand yesterday in the high point of the second day of the trial. The youth, who was visiting at the home of his uncle, Galen Harding, 41, of Hoy, recalled that his uncle and Eugene C. Whetzel, 25, also of Hoy, had engaged in an argument last July 10.

The boy said that his uncle fired his .22 calibre rifle once and he admitted that he fired it twice in the direction of Whetzel. However, he said he did not intend to shoot the man and did not know that he had shot him.

Whetzel was found dead in the vicinity of a "gypsy camp" near Hoy.

Mr. Loy said that there were no witnesses to the shooting. Those he called to the stand testified either about the good reputation of the 14-year-old boy or about the bad reputation of Whetzel, who was said to have had a "violent" temper, he said.

Prosecuting Attorney Loudoun L. Thompson will have the opportunity of opening and closing the argument this morning with Mr. Loy addressing the jury in between.

Mr. Thompson said Monday that the state has waived capital punishment in the trial of the boy. The youngster had attended Augusta Graded School and was to have begun his freshman year at Capon Bridge High School this fall.

Harding, the boy's uncle, was scheduled for trial today on a charge of aiding and abetting the murder. However, there was some uncertainty about the time schedule last night pending the outcome of the boy's trial, which had started in Romney Monday morning.

Judge H. Gus Muntzing is presiding at the trial.

Evangelism Crusade Plans Under Way

Three dozen clergymen, lay church leaders, businessmen and public officials attended a dinner meeting at the Fort Cumberland Hotel last night to launch the John Edmund Haggai evangelistic "crusade," which will be held here October 13-27.

They heard Rev. Mr. Haggai outline plans for the evangelistic meetings, which will be held in a "canvas cathedral," a tent, at the Fair Grounds.

After singing "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms" and "Amazing Grace," the men heard Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church, discuss the need for community-wide support to make the program a success. Rev. Mr. Beck is promotion manager for the local "crusade."

Rev. Mr. Beck is promotion manager for the local program. Mayor Earl Chaney is honorary chairman, Rev. Everett W. Culp, pastor of First Methodist Church, co-chairman, and Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in Allegany County public schools, secretary-treasurer and finance committee chairman.

Rev. Mr. Haggai, who spent 12 years as a pastor before becoming a traveling evangelist eight years ago, said the mass evangelistic programs he conducts are not designed to substitute for church work or for personal evangelism, but are intended to "augment and implement" such regular efforts.

He said the program seeks to reach not only the nominal but non-active church members, but those who never attend church.

Stolen Auto Found Quickly

An auto which was reported stolen here yesterday afternoon was recovered later in the day under rather unusual circumstances.

Leroy Saville of 1101 Grant Street notified local police that his car was stolen from the YMCA parking lot early in the afternoon.

A 16-year-old local boy stole the car, according to police, who said he drove it to the parking lot at Fort Hill High School.

A brother of the owner of the car noticed the boy in the car and stopped him. Police were called and the boy was taken into custody. He later was released to his mother.

Moberly To Speak

John A. Moberly, superintendent of Memorial Hospital, will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club tomorrow at noon at Central YMCA.

Mr. Moberly will speak on "Hospital Costs in General and Memorial Hospital in Particular."

Laying Plans For Evangelistic Series

Rev. John Haggai, center, nationally known evangelist, meets with local church and business leaders to plan an evangelistic "crusade" he will conduct here next month. From left are Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church and promotion manager for the local campaign; Al Stringfellow, associate evangelist in charge of coordination of activities; Mayor Earl Chaney, honorary chairman; Carl Young, associate in charge of youth work; Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in Allegany County public schools, secretary-treasurer and finance committee chairman.

At the conclusion of the services Saturday, the B'er Chayim sisterhood will serve a "break-fast" meal in the vestry rooms.

Crews Expedite Renovation Job On City Dams

Work on the rehabilitation of the Lake Gordon and Lake Koon dams is progressing at a fast pace.

Crews of the Air Placement Company, of Grafton, W. Va., moved in shotcrete equipment Monday morning and by that afternoon had crews busy restoring the surface to original contours.

Yesterday, two crews were busy shooting on the concrete mix, one crew was putting up wire reinforcing mesh and another was drilling to locate a leak at the base of the dam.

Another shotcrete machine will be placed in operation this week, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light was told.

The firm began work August 19 on the $68,000 contract and have been busy since then sandblasting weathered sections of the face of the reservoirs and installing anchors to hold wire mesh reinforcing in place.

Surfaces of the dams are being restored by the shotcrete equipment which is used to blow on a mixture of cement, sand and water.

The mix is applied under pressure as workers direct the nozzle of the "gun" back and forth until the concrete is built up to the required thickness.

The face of both dams will be restored to the original lines during the work.

The work also calls for locating and stopping, by pressure grouting, a leak in Lake Gordon on the side opposite the gate house.

Lease Held For Jury

William Daniel Robert Lease, 33, of 343 National Highway, LaVale, yesterday was ordered held under $2,500 bond for action of the October term of the Allegany County grand jury on a charge of auto theft.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt conducted the preliminary hearing and ordered Lease committed to the County Jail in default of bond.

Lease was charged with taking a car owned by Thomas McHugh, 106 Potomac Street, on July 8. He was returned here Monday from Bedford, Pa., by Tfc. Willis E. Foreman of the State Police.

Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason, who presented the state's case yesterday, said Lease has requested an immediate trial. Mr. Mason said Lease also faces a charge of non-support.

Killing Frost Hits Section; Cool Again Today

The cool spell, which moved into the area earlier in the week and brought with it a killing frost in Garrett County and parts of Allegany County, is expected to continue for another day or so.

Killing frost was reported in Garrett County on Monday and Tuesday and some frost damage was reported in the low spots in Allengany County yesterday.

The lowest reading in the area was at Thomas, W. Va., where 22 degrees was reported. Other low readings were Town Hill, 24; Oakland, 28; LaVale, 30, and Cumberland, 37.

The forecast for today calls for continued sunny and cool weather with temperatures in the 60s. Tomorrow the prediction is for partly cloudy and warmer weather.

Yesterday, the mercury reached 68 degrees in downtown Cumberland, but began to drop sharply after the sun set.

Ladies Night Slated By Local Optimists

Ladies night will be marked this evening during the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Cumberland Optimist Club which will begin at 6:15 at Central YMCA. A program will be presented.

Unseasonal Lily

This regal lily is providing unseasonal beauty in the yard of Mrs. Charles F. Fradiska, 431 Chestnut Street. Mrs. Fradiska said she received the lily as an Easter gift and planted it in her yard when warm weather came. About eight weeks ago the lily began growing once again and reached its present height. It has three large blooms.

Blonskey, principal at Pennsylvania Avenue; Miss Esther M. Carter and Eugene J. Hopkins, visiting teachers; LaVern J.

Della Predicts JFK Will Lose In Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former president of the Maryland Senate predicted Tuesday that President Kennedy and any candidate who runs with his backing in Maryland next year will be defeated.

George W. Della, who was defeated last year in his bid for a sixth term in the State Senate from Baltimore's 6th District, expressed this view in forecasting a gloomy future for his party.

"Kennedy can't win Maryland in the general election," he said. "Goldwater could carry the state if he runs."

The national trend, Della said, is to the Republican Party. "The shift is to the right. And anyone who runs with Kennedy in Maryland will lose."

Della was thinking about a possible Kennedy-Tydings ticket in Maryland.

Joseph D. Tydings, Maryland's U.S. attorney and the son of the late U.S. Sen. Millard E. Tydings, is a close friend of the President and U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, and apparently has White House support for U.S. Senate. The President recently visited Tydings' home in Harford County.

"Even if Tydings got the party nomination," Della said, "it wouldn't do him any good. He'd lose in the general. Joe knows he can't win."

The Democrats must have an independent thinker if they are to take a Maryland Senate seat from the Republicans, Della said. The seat now held by Republican J. Glenn Beall will be filled in next year's election.

Della indicated that he may be the independent thinker the Democrats need.

"I've been thinking about running," he said. "I've been approached by labor and by a number of Baltimore County people."

He said he had not discussed with Gov. Tawes the possibility of seeking the Senate nomination in the Democratic primary.

Stop Signs Placed On Local Street

Two additional stop signs have been placed at local intersections as a safety measure, said Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan.

He said the signs have been placed at the intersection of Prospect Square and Washington Street on West Side and at Shawnee Avenue and Franklin Street in North End.

Board Approves Coal Heat For New School

Decision Involves South End Project

When the new South End Junior High School is constructed it will be heated with coal.

That decision was made yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Education after receiving a recommendation to that effect from William Van Lonkhuyzen, architect with the Silver Spring firm of Johannes and Murray, which is designing the new building to be constructed several blocks from Fort Hill High School.

Mr. Van Lunkhuyzen wrote that Montgomery County had tried electric heat in one eight-room school and officials are still experimenting with controls as the second heating season opens.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster explained to the board some of the plans involving outdoor athletic facilities near the new North End Junior High School. The George Construction Company was awarded the contract August 20 to build this school on a low bid of $1,767,000.

Stitcher Field Stays

Mr. Webster said Stitcher Field, the present North End baseball diamond, will be maintained and improved south of the new school. The tennis courts, which are being removed to make room for the school, will be rebuilt near the baseball diamond. A paved play area will be developed near the school's gymnasium.

The school is being built fairly close to Holland Street to avoid the hillside at the edge of the property. The corner of the building still will be 52 feet from Holland Street.

After yesterday's session, the board members drove to North End to inspect the school site.

Approved was the contract of a new teacher at Flintstone Elementary School, Mrs. Patricia Eberhard, 198 East Main Street, Frostburg. Mrs. Eberhard, who had three years of teaching experience in Michigan, was hired just before the school year started early in September.

Mr. Webster informed the board that Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, who plans to retire at the close of this year, wants to meet with all of the school boards around the state before retiring.

The Allegany County board decided to leave details of arrangements to the county superintendent.

Letters Of Thanks

Four letters of thanks were read into the record by Mr. Webster. Letters from the LaVale PTA, East Side PTA and Paul M. Arbogast, principal of Johnson Heights School, expressed appreciation for summer improvements made at all three schools.

Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, principal of Mt. Savage School, aimed his letter at Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, county supervisor of cafeterias. He commended her for featuring menus from different sections in the cafeterias and was particularly pleased that the first featured New England recipes. Mr. Hodgdon is a native of Maine.

All five board members, J. Goodloe Jackson, T. Donald Shires, Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. George M. Young and Mrs. May B. Bolt, attended yesterday's session as did the board's attorney, Robert MacDonald Bruce.

For the second day in a row firemen of West Side station were called to Cleveland Avenue to quench a brush fire. They received a call yesterday at 11:21 a. m. The call on Monday was 6:33 p. m.

School Board Decides Against Advisory Group

The Allegany County Board of Education decided yesterday afternoon that there is no need now for the creation of a citizens advisory committee on education.

This action was taken after the board members received copies of a four-page report submitted by T. Donald Shires, vice chairman of the board, on the experience of other Maryland counties with such committees.

Mrs. Richard Winer, a former member of the school board, made a motion at one of the meetings before her resignation for the creation of a citizens advisory committee on education. Eventually, the matter was referred to Mr. Shires for investigation.

He wrote to all 22 other Maryland counties and Baltimore City seeking information on their experiences with such committees.

Sixteen counties and Baltimore City responded and 10 of the counties reported they never had had such committees.

In some of those counties where committees had been formed they were organized for a specific purpose. For instance, Kent County on the Eastern Shore had used committees for such purposes as buildings, desegregation and teachers' salaries.

Several members of the Allegany County board said yesterday that such a committee might be advisable if some specific school need developed, but at this time they did not anticipate such need.

The school board here thought the comment of Willard L. Hawkins, Garrett County superintendent of schools, was pertinent.

"Such a committee could be helpful if it is properly motivated and is comprised of people interested in better schools," he wrote. "There might be a danger in such a committee acting as a super-board and challenging every action of the Board of Education. This could lead to a very unpleasant situation."

Mr. Shires was thanked for his efforts in this study.

21 Companies To Take Part In B-E Day

Twenty-one business and industrial firms have agreed to participate in the annual Business Education Day activities October 23, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday.

Participating will be the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Blue Ribbon Baking Company, Celanese Fibers Company, C & P Telephone Company of Maryland, Columbia Gas of Maryland, Cumberland Brewing Company, Cumberland Lenders.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association, First-Second National Bank and Trust Company, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Liberty Trust Company, G. C. Murphy Company.

National Jet Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Potomac Edison Company, Queen City Brewing Company, Rosenbaum's, Sacred Heart Hospital, Sears Roebuck and Company, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the Western Maryland Railway.

Three of the firms, Blue Ribbon Baking, the Telephone Company and First Federal, will be participating in the program for the first time.

Taking part in the day's activities will be 695 teachers and administrators. Invitations were extended by the firm this week.

Robert C. Petersen, C of C manager, said that at last week's planning meeting the problem of finding parking space for 30 extra cars was solved when Coach System parking lots on Baltimore Street offered to provide free parking space for teachers who will be the guests of the hospital on B-E day.

Health Board To Meet

The City Health Board will meet Friday at 2 p. m. in the office of Mayor Earl D. Chaney in City Hall.

Better City Treatment Of Wastes Urged

Cumberland and 10 other communities on or near the North Branch of the Potomac River were urged yesterday to take immediate steps to provide better sewage treatment facilities.

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, meeting in Washington yesterday, adopted a resolution calling on the communities to help clean up the North Branch, and urging the state water control agencies of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia to "exert whatever resources are available to them" to correct conditions.

Carl J. Johnson, director of the commission, said the resolution noted that of the 114 sewered communities on the Potomac, 62 provide secondary waste treatment, 28 provide only primary treatment, and 21 provide no treatment at all.

At least 10 providing no treatment are on or near the North Branch and one of the two large communities among the 28 that provide only primary treatment also is on the North Branch. That is Cumberland. The only other large community among that 28 is Arlington, Va.

The 10 with no treatment are Ridgeley, Keyser, Piedmont, Frostburg, Midland, Barton, Lonaconing, LaVale, Cresaptown and Hyndman. Hyndman is under orders of the Pennsylvania Sanitary Water Board to treat its sewage.

The commission's resolution pointed out that substantial financial aid is available to communities for constructing sewage treatment plants, but that the condition of the North Branch waters remains "materially impaired" by untreated wastes.

In other action yesterday the commission elected Dr. Charles L. Wilbar Jr. as its director. Dr. Wilbar, as secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, has been an ex officio member of the ICPRB for several years. He succeeds Maryland State Sen. H. Winship Wheatley Jr., who has been chairman for the past two years.

Auto Thief Gets Year

Carl Junior Ruse, 27, of 216½ Knox Street, yesterday was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of auto larceny.

Magistrate Leslie J. Clark found Ruse guilty of two counts of auto theft and sentenced the local man to a year in jail on each charge. However, the magistrate ruled the sentences may run concurrently.

Ruse was charged with taking a car from Marshall Tewell, of the Knox Street Motors, on September 13, and with taking a car on September 19 owned by Paul Sullivan, 225 North Centre Street.

Ruse was arrested this week by Detective Capt. James E. Van and Detective Harry Iser, Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason represented the state at the hearing.

Hampshire Co. Jury To Rule On Boy's Fate

Murder Trial To End Today

A Hampshire County (W. Va.) Circuit Court jury of 10 men and two women is expected to decide the fate of a 14-year-old Hampshire County boy charged with murder today after the rival attorneys present their closing argument this morning in the Court House at Romney.

William H. Loy, attorney for the youngster from North River Mills, called the boy to the witness stand yesterday in the high point of the second day of the trial. The youth, who was visiting at the home of his uncle, Galen Harding, 41, of Hoy, recalled that his uncle and Eugene C. Whetzel, 25, also of Hoy, had engaged in an argument last July 10.

The boy said that his uncle fired his .22 calibre rifle once and he admitted that he fired it twice in the direction of Whetzel. However, he said he did not intend to shoot the man and did not know that he had shot him.

Whetzel was found dead in the vicinity of a "gypsy camp" near Hoy.

Mr. Loy said that there were no witnesses to the shooting. Those he called to the stand testified either about the good reputation of the 14-year-old boy or about the bad reputation of Whetzel, who was said to have had a "violent" temper, he said.

Prosecuting Attorney Loudoun L. Thompson will have the opportunity of opening and closing the argument this morning with Mr. Loy addressing the jury in between.

Mr. Thompson said Monday that the state has waived capital punishment in the trial of the boy. The youngster had attended Augusta Graded School and was to have begun his freshman year at Capon Bridge High School this fall.

Harding, the boy's uncle, was scheduled for trial today on a charge of aiding and abetting the murder. However, there was some uncertainty about the time schedule last night pending the outcome of the boy's trial, which had started in Romney Monday morning.

Judge H. Gus Muntzing is presiding at the trial.

Evangelism Crusade Plans Under Way

Three dozen clergymen, lay church leaders, businessmen and public officials attended a dinner meeting at the Fort Cumberland Hotel last night to launch the John Edmund Haggai evangelistic "crusade," which will be held here October 13-27.

They heard Rev. Mr. Haggai outline plans for the evangelistic meetings, which will be held in a "canvas cathedral," a tent, at the Fair Grounds.

After singing "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms" and "Amazing Grace," the men heard Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church, discuss the need for community-wide support to make the program a success. Rev. Mr. Beck is promotion manager for the local "crusade."

Rev. Mr. Beck is promotion manager for the local program. Mayor Earl Chaney is honorary chairman, Rev. Everett W. Culp, pastor of First Methodist Church, co-chairman, and Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in Allegany County public schools, secretary-treasurer and finance committee chairman.

Rev. Mr. Haggai, who spent 12 years as a pastor before becoming a traveling evangelist eight years ago, said the mass evangelistic programs he conducts are not designed to substitute for church work or for personal evangelism, but are intended to "augment and implement" such regular efforts.

He said the program seeks to reach not only the nominal but non-active church members, but those who never attend church.

Stolen Auto Found Quickly

An auto which was reported stolen here yesterday afternoon was recovered later in the day under rather unusual circumstances.

Leroy Saville of 1101 Grant Street notified local police that his car was stolen from the YMCA parking lot early in the afternoon.

A 16-year-old local boy stole the car, according to police, who said he drove it to the parking lot at Fort Hill High School.

A brother of the owner of the car noticed the boy in the car and stopped him. Police were called and the boy was taken into custody. He later was released to his mother.

Moberly To Speak

John A. Moberly, superintendent of Memorial Hospital, will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club tomorrow at noon at Central YMCA.

Mr. Moberly will speak on "Hospital Costs in General and Memorial Hospital in Particular."

Laying Plans For Evangelistic Series

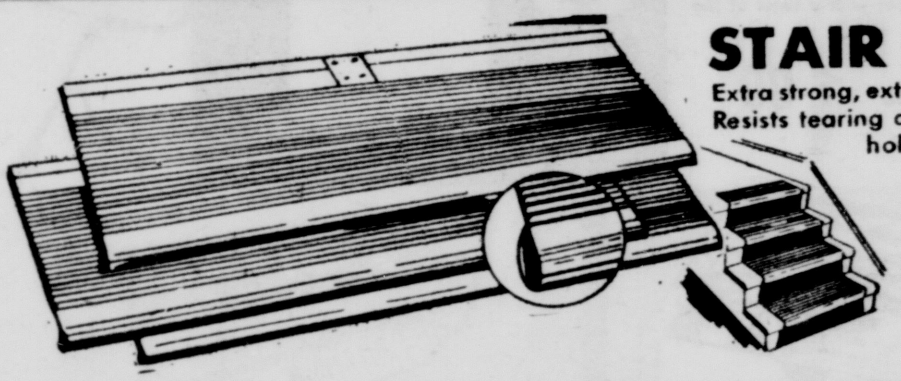

Rev. John Haggai, center, nationally known evangelist, meets with local church and business leaders to plan an evangelistic "crusade" he will conduct here next month. From left are Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church and promotion manager for the local campaign; Al Stringfellow, associate evangelist in charge of coordination of activities; Mayor Earl Chaney, honorary chairman; Carl Young, associate in charge of youth work; Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in Allegany County public schools, secretary-treasurer and finance committee chairman.
